Dear Fellow-Ministers:

1965 will doubtless be remembered in Princeton as the year without a summer. I am not speaking of climate but of the normal pattern of June as the month in which one catches up, July the month to plan ahead, and August the month to relax and read reflectively. In lieu of this usual expectation there were negotiations for the Princeton-Windsor apartments, an expanded summer schedule of activities on campus, alumni meetings in the Far East, and an official visit to the Churches of Rumania. I suspect that this is a foretaste of summers to come. The Seminary will undoubtedly move more and more toward a twelve-month program, necessitated by the need for increased services to students, ministers, and laymen. Already the Center of Continuing Education is involved in a year-round program, and plans are being made to enlarge the Summer Language School. The acquisition of two hundred apartments, after years of having building plans frustrated, not only assures adequate housing for students and junior faculty but makes possible a new dimension of community life for Seminary families. In this connection it is well to be reminded of words penned by Dr. Mackay to describe the Seminary as a Christian community.

"Princeton Theological Seminary is more than a school for the preparation of pastors and teachers of the Christian church. It is a community which undertakes to order its common life in accordance with the obedience of faith in Jesus Christ our Lord. Insofar as Jesus Christ is the norm and the guide of all that happens in the life of the community, it is possible to speak of Princeton Theological Seminary as a Christian community, and to commend the privileges and responsibilities of membership to successive generations of faculty, students and staff. Where Jesus Christ is the Lord of life, and is at work among those who live together in His service, the common life of all becomes the concern of each member of the community; and what happens to each member of the community belongs to the common life and the well-being of all."

Meetings with alumni at home and overseas have underscored the significance of community life while in Seminary and, at the same time, have encouraged us to strive all the more to create the conditions necessary for a richer Christian community. The new campus for married students will help us achieve this. All our efforts, though, must be exerted in the light of the supreme fact that Dietrich Bonhoeffer has emphasized in his volume, LIFE TOGETHER: "God permits (us) to meet together and gives (us) community." True Christian community is a spiritual and not a human reality.

With the Fall number of the ALUMNI NEWS there goes to every alumnus a warm invitation to return to the campus at some time during the year and to take part in the Seminary's program.

Faithfully yours,

Joachim Jeremias, Visiting Professor of New Testament, faced a capacity audience in Miller Chapel for his address at the opening Convocation of the 154th academic year as Princeton Seminary welcomed the largest student body in its history.

Enrollment Hits New High of 532

Princeton Theological Seminary welcomed the largest student body in its history as 532 students enrolled for classes September 20-22.

An entering B.D.-M.R.E. class of 127, twelve more than in the previous year, was one of the major reasons for the record enrollment. A total of 297 B.D. candidates, and thirty-six M.R.E. candidates, are registered for the current semester, an increase of one over 1964 figures.

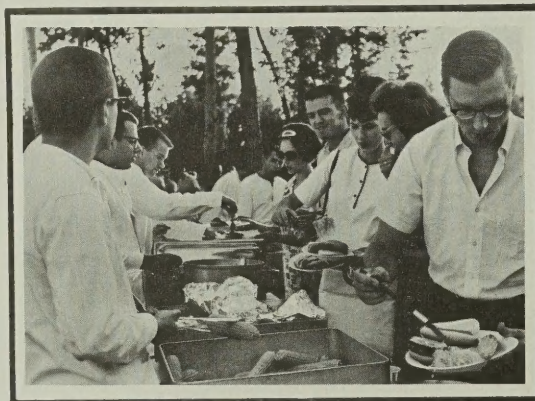

Also on the increase is registration in the Th.M. and Th.D. programs. Fourteen more Master's students are at work this year, and an increase of six was recorded in the doctoral program. Special students, both graduate and undergraduate, increased by six.

Enrollment has drifted steadily upwards for six years: 421 in 1960, 445 in 1961, 492 in 1962, 512 in 1963, 506 last year. The previous high was an even 500 in 1956.

Top: Incoming students receive orientation materials September 19 at a reception desk in the Campus Center. Marlynn L. May, right, and David Rogge, second from right, both Seniors returning from internships, organized and assisted in directing the orientation program for new students.

Right: An all-campus picnic September 22 at the recreation area of the Seminary's new 200-unit apartment complex drew so many participants that food ran low and the planned program was abandoned. Student body leaders, who had originally intended to introduce new students to the program of extra-curricular activities, decided it was impractical to gather the 500-plus students, wives and children for even an informal presentation. The event, intended as a primary means of establishing contacts between dormitory and married students, was rated the most successful such "mixer" at the Seminary in recent years, and the establishment of a central housing facility for married students was given a major share of the praise for the surprising turnout.

Gaertner Joins Faculty, Beker Named

Two permanent appointments to the Princeton Theological Seminary New Testament faculty were announced by President James I. McCord following the October 11-12 meeting of the Seminary's Board of Trustees.

Bertil E. Gaertner, Swedish New Testament scholar formerly at the University of Upsala, was named Professor of New Testament Language and Exegesis.

J. Christiaan Beker, a native of the Netherlands who until 1964 taught at the Pacific School of Religion, was appointed Professor of Biblical Theology. Beker has been Visiting Professor of New Testament at Princeton Seminary for the past year.

James E. Wallace, formerly a practicing attorney in California who completed his studies for a Princeton Seminary Doctor of Theology degree in 1964, was named Assistant Professor of Christianity and Society, and Admissions Officer at Princeton Seminary, at the same meeting of the Trustees.

Joining the two New Testament additions this year is Germany's Joachim Jeremias, leading specialist in the study of the parables of Jesus. Jeremias, who is Professor of New Testament at the University of Goettingen, is a Visiting Professor of New Testament for the current term. Alberto Soggin, Italian Old Testament professor from the Waldensian Theological Faculty of Rome, will be Visiting Professor of Old Testament for the second semester. Serving as Visiting Lecturer in Ecumenics is Dr. Carl Furuya, Professor at International Christian University in Japan.

Gaertner, a minister of the Swedish Lutheran Church, has taught both Old and New Testament at Upsala University since receiving his doctorate in 1955. His career includes a year's service as student pastor to the university, and military service in the Swedish Army. Besides more than 250 articles in academic and popular publications, he has published The Theology of the Gospel According to Thomas in both Swedish and English, and monographs in the fields of Pauline theology and the Dead Sea Scrolls.

Christiaan Beker is the author of The Church Faces the World, a study of late New Testament writing, and articles for various scholarly journals and Biblical dictionaries. A graduate of the University of Utrecht who earned his Doctor of Philosophy degree at the University of Chicago, Beker taught at Union Seminary in New York before going to the Pacific School of Religion in 1959.

Professor

The Parables of Jesus is the best known of the seven works by Joachim Jeremias that have been printed in English. A revised version is to appear soon, along with a new book entitled The Origins of Infant Baptism. Jeremias is chairman of the Septuagint Commission of the Academy of Letters and Sciences at Goettingen, and a member of the Royal Netherlands Academy of Sciences and Letters as well as the holder of the Bur-kitt Medal of the British Academy.

James Wallace, who will direct the Princeton Seminary Admissions office as well as teach in the field of Church and Society, received his law degree from the University of California at Berkeley in 1949. Following three years of service as an infantry officer with the Marine Corps, Wallace entered legal practice in Los Angeles, where he was active in Boy Scout, Red Cross, and YMCA programs and served on the Republican Central Committee of Los Angeles County. In 1964-65 he was the convener of the Evanston Conference of Lawyers and Clergymen, during a year's post-doctoral study at Northwestern University's Program in Law and the Social Sciences as a resident fellow the Russell Sage Foundation.

Also named to the administrative staff is Jerome J. Leksa, who comes to Princeton Seminary as Assistant to the Dean of

Forman, Weber, Kaesemann and Routley Set Seminary Lectures

A specialist in the field of Christian missions, a noted Church musician and two German theologians will deliver major lectures series during the current academic year at Princeton Theological Seminary.

Charles W. Forman, President of the Commission on Ecumenical Mission of the United Presbyterian Church and Professor of Missions at Yale University Divinity School, opened the lecture season November 8-9, with three addresses on "The Missionary Calling in Historical Perspective."

The six-address Annie Kinkead Warfield Lectures will be delivered February 7-11, 1966, by Otto Weber, Professor of Reformed Theology at the University of Goettingen. Weber, whose topic will be

"Calvin's Doctrine of the Word," will speak at 7:45 p.m., on each of the five days (Monday through Friday) and also at 1:20 p.m., on Tuesday, February 8.

"The Interpretation of Paul" will be the title of three evening lectures in Biblical Theology to be given Monday through Wednesday, March 14-16, by Ernst Kaesemann, Professor of New Testament at the University of Tuebingen.

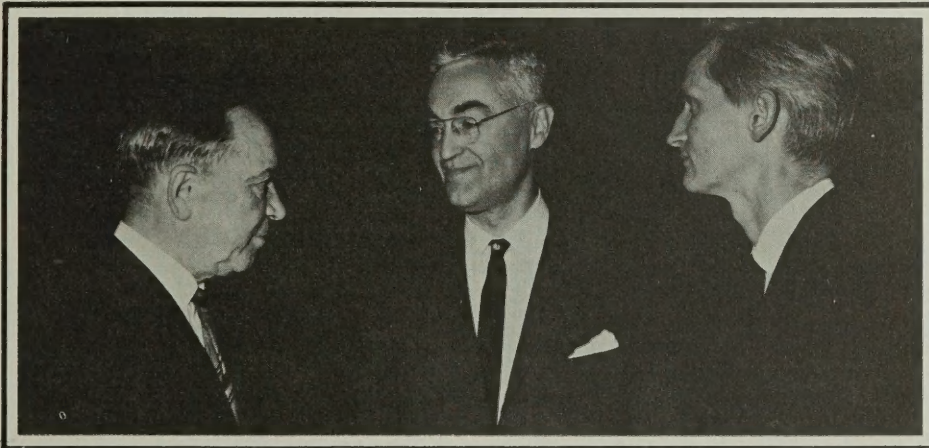

Completing the series will be the annual Stone Lectures April 11-14, by Erik Routley, minister of the Augustine-Bristol Congregational Church of Edinburgh, Scotland, and former lecturer in church history and organist at Mansfield College, Oxford. He will speak each evening, Monday through Thursday, and at 2:00 p.m., on Tuesday, April 12, on "Church Music and Hymnody." The evening lectures will be at 7:45 p.m.

Routley is the author of some twenty-five volumes and collections in the field of church music and church history. He held two pastorates prior to his appointment to Mansfield and subsequent move to Edinburgh, and has been editor of the bulletin of the Hymn Society of Great Britain and Ireland and editor of the chronicle of the London Missionary Society. He writes weekly book reviews and occasional articles for The British Weekly.

Ernst Kaesemann, on leave from his University of Tuebingen post this year to serve as a visiting professor at San Francisco Theological Seminary, received his Doctorate in Theology from the University of Marburg. His best-known book is the study of Pauline thought, Leib und Leib Christi.

Otto Weber went to the Goettingen faculty in 1934 after six years as director of the Reformed Theological College at Wuppertal, Germany. His best-known works in English are Karl Barth's Church Dogmatics and Ground Plan of the Bible. Charles Forman joined the Yale faculty in 1953 after service with the National Council of Churches and a year as director of the Christian Student Fellowship on Christianity and Communism. Editor of The Christian's Handbook on Communism and author of A Faith for the Nations, Forman taught at North India United Theological College for five years in the late 1940's. Educated at Ohio State University, he received his Ph.D. at the University of Wisconsin in 1941, and then returned to school to earn a Bachelor of Divinity degree at Union Theological Seminary in New York. He later received the degree of Master of Sacred Theology at Union.

Field Education after eight years as Director of the Westminster Foundation at the University of Iowa.

New instructors on the Princeton Seminary faculty are: Norman Beck, who will be teaching in New Testament while completing a doctoral dissertation in that field; W. Malcolm Clark, who has accepted an appointment as Instructor in Old Testament after completing a Ph.D. degree at Yale University; and Darrell J.

Doughty, Instructor in New Testament who returns to the United States after doctoral research at the University of Goettingen.

Also David B. Evans, who will be Instructor in Church History following a year as a Dumbarton Oaks Fellow in Washington, D. C.; and Donald B. Rogers, Princeton Seminary doctoral candidate who will be an Instructor in Christian Education.

Class of '65

Enters First Pastorates

The 108 graduates of the Class of 1965, including eleven M.R.E. graduates, last year numbered in their ranks 94 recipients of the B.D. degree in the 1965 class, two members of the Class of 1964 whose degrees were awarded with the following year's graduates, and one recipient of the Certificate in Theology.

Secretary of the Seminary Arthur M. Byers, Jr., who guides graduating Seniors in their relationships with the Columbus office of the Department of Ministerial Relations, as well as equivalent offices in other denominations, has received information from all but seven of the graduates as of October 1.

Seventy B.D. graduates went immediately into local congregations as ministers, associates or assistants. Another six were called to specialized ministries such as the campus ministry or institutional chaplaincy, and two graduates were called to overseas service.

Seven men and women who received diplomas in June have entered the field of Christian education, including both B.D. and M.R.E. graduates. The four graduates who are listed under "miscellaneous" will be doing such things as working as an area administrative secretary for COEMAR, running a Red Cross Clubmobile program in Korea, undertaking special work for the Presbytery of Detroit, and getting married to other graduates who are entering pastorates.

Borough Hall The buildings and grounds that presently serve as a town hall for the Borough of Princeton have been purchased by Princeton Seminary. The property is the last available unit of major real estate bordering the current campus. The property includes a gracious post-Colonial mansion, now the Princeton Borough Hall, and one other structure. It also provides a site for a projected classroom building. $200,000 of the cost is an approved item in the $50 Million Fund budget. The current Borough Hall can temporarily be used for offices as well as for classrooms until a new classroom building can be constructed.

Seminary Takes Title to Borough Hall

Princeton Theological Seminary on September 28 became landlord to Princeton's police department, tax office, traffic violations bureau, welfare services, and the offices of the Mayor and Borough Administrator. The new tenants also include the Princeton post of the American Legion.

The tenants came with the deeds to the Borough Hall and its property, a plot of three and a half acres running completely through the block between Mercer and Stockton Streets, and covering the remaining area between Speer Library and Trinity Episcopal Church.

The acquisition, part of a four-party arrangement involving the Seminary, the Borough, Princeton Country Day Schools and the Trustees of the Swann Estate, brings under Seminary control the last remaining piece of major property adjacent to the main campus. No plans for utilization of the property or the buildings have been set, but the possibility of a new classroom-faculty office building next to Speer Library, and the eventual use of Borough Hall for administrative or seminar space, has been discussed informally.

Thompson Hall was once one of Princeton's residential showplaces. Located across Stockton Street from the residence of New Jersey governors at Morven, it was an admired setting for musicales, teas, and formal balls. Converted to office space, with jail cells in the basement, it has lost all of its interior charm, and the necessary additions to the building have also altered the outer appearance.

Located on the same plot, on the Mercer Street side, is a small stone building currently used by the American Legion post in Princeton. At an earlier date the Borough government occupied the smaller structure, but was forced to seek larger quarters as civic responsibilities increased.

The need for improved governmental offices was also a factor in the acquisition of the property by the Seminary. Enlarged and better designed municipal offices made a move by the Borough an obvious need. With the consolidation this Fall of Princeton Country Day School (for boys) and Miss Fine's School for Girls on a new campus on the Great Road, the original property of Miss Fine's was vacated. It is this site, located on the corner of Stockton Street and Bayard Lane, that the Seminary actually purchased. With the concurrence of Trustees responsible for the older Borough Hall property, and the approval of the court, the Borough and the Seminary then traded. The Borough received a site more suitable for the construction of a new headquarters, along with a gymnasium for public meetings and recreation. The Seminary received a new addition contiguous to existing property.

The Seminary does not expect to occupy the property for some time. It will be necessary for the Borough to plan for new construction, demolish the old Miss Fine's School (originally the home of Princeton Inn), and arrange financing for their new home before the Seminary will be able to consider using the structures.

The long-planned $50 Million Fund will meet some of the most pressing capital needs of the United Presbyterian Church, and three of the most urgent needs of Princeton Seminary are on the list.

A fund of this nature will meet all of the listed needs only if the entire goal is met, and all United Presbyterians are sharing in the work of assuring that success. If only a part of the goal is reached, then the objectives of the fund will be partly met.

But, $50 Million Fund planners have pointed out that donors may designate their gifts to the campaign, whether from individuals, churches, or any other source, for any of the approved objectives.

That allows any church or individual to make his contribution for the benefit of Princeton Seminary's approved projects within the $50 Million Fund. Should the Seminary's needs be fully covered by such designated gifts, the Seminary will receive its entire approved share whether or not the total goal of the Fund is achieved.

The items illustrated and described below, as well as the Borough Hall property described on the opposite page, are the Seminary's projects with the $50 Million Fund.

A small leaflet, suitable for insertion in orders of worship distributed for Sunday services, is available to ministers who desire to bring these designated gift possibilities to the attention of their congregations. Vice-President Robert M. Skinner, '34, is the person to write.

People who give $100 or $100,000 to one of the approved needs of Princeton Theological Seminary will know precisely what their dollars have accomplished.

The $50 Million Fund...

A Seminary Opportunity

Power Plant

All of the campus buildings have been heated from a central power plant more than fifty years old. This past summer the boilers did not pass inspection and were condemned. For the next two years steam will be purchased from Princeton University. Before the end of that period, Princeton Seminary must complete the construction of a new facility that will combine heating, maintenance and service operations. The $50 Million Fund budget includes $1,000,000 for this critical project — very close to the estimated building cost. The construction of the modern service and maintenance center will assure the Seminary of power for heating, provide a more economical and efficient headquarters for maintenance services, and enable the Seminary to meet the needs of expanded campus facilities for its growing program.

Apartments

Until this summer Princeton Seminary had only forty apartments for its 300-plus student families. Architects and builders estimated it would cost about $20,000 per unit to build forty-six more apartments, and the $50 Million Fund budget includes $383,000 toward this objective. Early this summer a nearly-new 200-unit apartment complex just ten minutes from the campus became available at a public sale. It was secured by the Seminary at a little more than half the anticipated cost of building. The money borrowed to take advantage of this opportunity must be repaid at the earliest possible moment. The $383,000 will begin to make these fine facilities the permanent property of the Seminary.

Roll Call Responses Up 53 Percent; New Classes Lead

The number of responses to the annual Princeton Seminary Alumni Roll Call went past the 1,000 mark for the first time this year, with 1,007 individual gifts and pledges received, Vice-President, Robert M. Skinner, '34, has announced. The total includes some responses by former students who made more than one gift during the year.

The total, 336 more than the previous year for a 53% increase, brought $14,886 to the endowment of the Center of Continuing Education. The amount is still short of the $25,000 goal set by the Alumni Council, but the total contributions represent a 48.8% rise over the 1964 giving level of $10,012. The Alumni Council voted to retain the $25,000 goal for the 1966 Roll Call, and announcement of the beginning of the campaign will reach alumni in early December. The Class of 1965, newest in the ranks of the Seminary's 5,300-plus former students, has already begun mailing in advance gifts.

The profile of alumni giving shows a strong trend toward major support from graduates of more recent years. The class of 1964 was the only class, with the exception of the 50-year graduates of 1915, to record a gift from more than half of the class's members. The 50-year men, who assembled on campus at the June Commencement for a reunion, made nineteen contributions to a special scholarship endowment fund in honor of their class. Dr. Skinner, in summarizing the alumni giving for the year, pointed out the importance of contributions from former students in the total development program of the Seminary. "Alumni may not be able to make large gifts, although many of them are finding it possible to give the Seminary a greater percentage of their benevolent contributions," he said. "But the individuals and foundations who are able to make capital contributions are always impressed by the number of alumni who contribute. The gift of an alumnus may be a wedge that opens up the door to a much larger contribution."

Here are the giving records of the individual classes through October 1, 1965:

President James I. McCord was the preacher in the Cadet Chapel at West Point early this fall when a Bible was presented to Cadet John W. May, Jr., a first-year student at the Academy, symbolizing the 96th year in which the American Tract Society has presented Bibles to new Protestant Cadets. Some 800 Bibles were distributed to the new class at West Point this year. Left to right, Cadet John T. Belkes, III; Cadet May; Dr. McCord, Stephen E. Slocum, Jr., Executive Secretary of the American Tract Society, Cadet Gary S. Eiber, and Cadet Chaplain James D. Ford.

Mary Schmoeller, Alumni Council Member

Miss Mary Schmoeller, member of the Class of 1957 and a member of the Executive Council of the Princeton Seminary Alumni Association, died Oct. 21 of injuries suffered in an automobile accident a week earlier. A memorial service was held in the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church.

At the time of her death Miss Schmoeller was pre-school editor in the Division of Pre-Communicant Education of the Board of Christian Education. She had served earlier as Director of Christian Education in Northminster Church, Evanston, Ill.

Library Acquires Rare Letters, Photos and Journals

A collection of fourteen original letters, including messages written by Benjamin Franklin, Alexander Hamilton, Washington Irving, Thomas Jefferson, James Madison, Lafayette, Martin Van Buren and George Washington were deposited in Speer Library earlier this year. The anonymous presentation totaled fourteen letters written between 1777 and 1834.

The diary of Robert Hamill Nassau, 1859, pioneer medical missionary to Africa who founded the Lambarene mission station made famous by Albert Schweitzer, was presented to the library this year by Miss Mary Brunett Nassau and Miss Foster of Bay Head, N. J. Along with the diary of the famed missionary, who went from Princeton Seminary to the University of Pennsylvania to earn a medical degree before going to Africa, came a collection of photographs relating to Nassau's work.

Another personal journal came to Speer Library when the Atlantic County Historical Society of Somers Point, N. J., authorized the microfilming of the thirty-five volume diary of Allen Henry Brown, 1843, who served as a missionary among the churches of New Jersey.

The Alumni Room in the Campus Center, repository of records, photographs, and other mementoes of Princeton Seminary's former eating clubs, has been rearranged to include representation to the four clubs in existence at the time the construction of a central dining facility brought the long service careers of the clubs to a close.

Group photographs, and the original building signs, of the Friar, Warfield, Calvin, Benham, and Calvin-Warfield clubs are on display. Still being sought is a photograph of the old Adelphian Club, which included President Emeritus John A. Mackay and Trustee President Peter K. Emmons in its membership.

An illuminated document commemorating the history of the clubs at Princeton Seminary is being prepared by Secretary of the Seminary Arthur M. Byers, Jr., '50. Byers is seeking information about the existence of an Adelphian Club photograph as well as other materials dating from the era of the club.

Farber and McCartney, Emeritus Trustees

Benjamin F. Farber and Albert J. McCartney, both emeritus trustees of the Seminary, died this past summer on dates one month apart.

McCartney, a member of the Class of 1903, died on August 20 after having served as a member of the Board of Trustees since 1931.

Farber, who was named to the Board of Trustees in 1930 and who became Secretary of the Board in 1944, died on September 20. He was a member of the Class of 1909.

Pastorates in First Church, Germantown, Pa.; First Church, Plymouth, Mich.; Woodward Avenue Church, Detroit; Sixth Church, Pittsburgh; and Fourth Church, New York City were served by Farber during his ministry. He also was in war service in 1918 with the Y.M.C.A., and after his retirement was Interim Pastor at Tenafly, N. J. In 1924, both Washington and Jefferson and Grove City Colleges honored him with the D.D. degree.

Long the pastor of the National Presbyterian Church in Washington, D. C., Albert J. McCartney was ordained in 1903 to the pastorate of the Westfield Church, Mt. Jackson, Pa. Following study at Glasgow and Oxford Universities, he went to Sharon, Pa., as minister of the First Presbyterian Church. He later held pastorates in Chicago, and Santa Monica, Calif., before going to Washington to the pulpit of the congregation then known as the Covenant First Presbyterian Church. He served as a consultant to the State Department, delivered invocations at two Republican National Conventions, and after his retirement was Director of the Sunday Evening Club in Chicago.

John McKee, Alumnus & Newsman, Dies at 62

John L. McKee didn't enter the ministry. He left Princeton Seminary after one year of study as a member of the Class of 1935, and returned to the newspaper world he first entered as a copy boy in Kansas City at the age of 17.

For twenty years following World War II, McKee played a key role in the development of a worldwide financial reporting service for the Associated Press. He had earlier worked for International News Service, United Press, and the Columbia Broadcasting System, as well as an advertising agency.

The son of a Princeton alumnus, James McKee, '86, John McKee died in a New York hospital after surgery for removal of a brain tumor. He had long been handicapped by crippling arthritis. At his death Hal Boyle, syndicated AP columnist, wrote the following:

He was one of those quiet heroes for whom no bugles ever blew, because we accept their daily bravery as commonplace. Arthritis seemed to grip his spine like a giant hand and slowly and progressively bent him over. His posture was so bad he could not look up or to the right or left. The rough cabbies in his neighborhood had a protective attitude toward him. They'd pass by a fuming fat lady or an important-looking executive anytime to pick up, 'That bent-over fellow with the cane.'

A cabdriver asked me the other day, 'Say, whatever happened to your friend, the bent-over man?' When I told him, he was silent for a moment and then said: 'Well, he sure was a grand guy. I never knew anybody that showed more real guts.' When people talk like that about you after you're gone, you don't need a memorial. You've made a success out of life.

Professor Arend van Leeuwen, Director of the Lay Education Center Kerk en Wereld in the Netherlands, lectured and met with classes during an early October appearance on campus.

The Dutch theologian, author of the recent book Christianity and World History, is shown here in discussion with a seminar conducted by Professor of Ecumenics M. Richard Shaull, '41.

Fritsch Lectures in Japan and Korea

Old Testament Professor Charles T. Fritsch, '35, delivered lectures this past summer to audiences at Hankuk Theological Seminary, Presbyterian Theological Seminary, and the Yonsei University College of Theology, and also addressed a specially called meeting of the Old Testament Society of Japan, during a tour of the two nations.

In both Korea and Japan Dr. Fritsch met with large groups of Princeton Seminary alumni. Forty former students, as well as Mayor Chi Young Yun of Seoul who lived on the Seminary campus while a graduate student at Princeton University, were among sixty-five guests at an alumni dinner held September 6th in a Seoul hotel. The group included Americans involved in various missionary and educational programs in Korea along with Koreans who had studied in Princeton.

At the Young Nak Presbyterian Church of Seoul, where Kyung Chik Han, '29, is the minister, Fritsch was the preacher for a Sunday morning schedule of three separate services of worship beginning at 7:15 a.m. More than 8,000 attend the three services each Sunday.

While in Japan, the Seminary Old Testament professor preached for the congregation where the father of Miss Keiko Obara, '35, is the minister, was guided through the industrial city of Osaka by Bokko Tsuchiyama, Th.D., '64. He also visited in Tokyo with Masanao Fujita, a leader of the Japanese Church whose son, Shozo Fujita, is now a Th.D. candidate at the Seminary.

Highlighting the visits with individuals in Japan was a meeting with the widow of Toyohiko Kagawa, famed Japanese industrial evangelist and theological scholar who was graduated with the Class of 1915.

Dr. Fritsch's lectures at the Hankuk Seminary in Seoul were in connection with the 25th anniversary of that institution. He spoke on "Archaeology and the Bible" and on "The Theology of the Prophets." In addition to the three lectures at the Presbyterian Theological Seminary, also in Seoul, Fritsch discussed present-day hermeneutical problems with the faculty of Yonsei University's Theological College. Yonsei, founded in the early 1900's is one of the oldest Christian universities in Korea. Upon returning to Princeton, Dr. Fritsch said that the difficult trip was eased by the careful planning and personal interest of COEMAR staff members and especially Stanton Wilson, member of the Class of 1949.

Forty of the sixty-five Princeton Seminary alumni in Korea met September 6th in a Seoul hotel with Professor C. Fritsch. Among the fifty guests was the Honorable Chi Young Yun, Mayor of Seoul, who roomed in Brown Hall and ate at the Friar Club while attending Princeton University graduate school.

FACULTY NOTES

PRESIDENT JAMES I. McCORD, whose early summer schedule was complicated by the unexpected purchase of the Seminary's new apartments for married students, spent July 23-31 visiting Reformed centers in Rumania after delivering the Hoyt Lectures July 19-23 at the Ministers' Conference, Union Seminary in New York. President McCord also lectured at the August 17-20 Massanetta, Va., Bible Conference and delivered the Pollock Lectures at the Sept. 7-10 School of Theology of the Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, N.S. and August, and took part in the following conferences: the Mount Olivet, Pa., Union Camp Meeting; the Massanetta, Va., Bible Conference; the Leadership Training Institute of Elizabeth Presbytery; and the Evangelism Workshop of the Synod of New Jersey.

Assistant in Field Education JEROME J. LEKSA, '65, took part in the Clinical Pastoral Education program conducted at Lancaster, Pa., General Hospital during the summer.

His summer program included a week in Toronto, where he preached at Bloor Street Church, whose minister is currently Moderator of the United Church of Canada, traveled to Nova Scotia to preach for the annual Laymen's outdoor service for the Presbytery of Sydney, and appeared on the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation TV program, "Focus." Macleod also led a September retreat for the Aisquith Church of Baltimore, and preached the closing service of the Collegeville Ministers' Assembly at Ursinus College.

Nine years of work on a new edition of the Greek New Testament came to an end this summer and the manuscript went to the printer, BRUCE M. METZGER, '38, reported after spending five July and August weeks at Westminster College, Cambridge, working with the international committee sponsored by the American Bible Society. The new edition is designed to be the basis of future New Testament translations throughout the world.

PAUL SCHERER, Visiting Professor of Homiletics, had his latest book, "The Word God Sent," published in October. An East Asia Travel Seminar for members of United Presbyterian and other Reformed churches studied problems of social change and Christian witness in five East Asian nations this past summer under the direction of CHARLES WEST, Professor of Ethics. After visiting Tokyo, Kyoto, Osaka, Manila, Hong Kong, Bangkok and taking part in the centennial celebrations of the coming of Christianity to Formosa (celebrations were held in Taipei, Tainan and Hualien), Dr. West returned to Princeton and in October attended the World Order Study Conference of the N.C.C. in St. Louis.

DAVID WILLIS, '57, Assistant Professor of Theology, has completed a January-September stint as acting editor of Theology Today during the sabbatical leave of Editor H. T. Kerr. ✓ PRINCETON THEOLOGICAL SEMINARY

January 14, 1966

Dear Fellow-Ministers:

During the past year the pace of the Fifty Million Fund in the United Presbyterian Church has accelerated as the campaign has begun to move from judicatory to judicatory. Timetables for presbyteries and plans in local congregations are being added to schedules already crowded. Here in Princeton our responsibility has been that of interpretation. This involves attendance at dinners and other public meetings and speaking about the needs of the whole Church that will be met by the Fund.

Reports on the progress of the Fifty Million Fund are all optimistic. Dr. Hudnut and his colleagues have planned well and are eliciting excellent cooperation across the Church. They are increasingly confident that the Fund will be fully subscribed and may even exceed its goal.

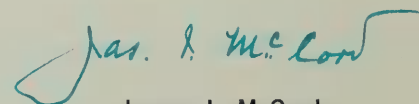

The reason for this initial success and growing confidence lies in the ministers and lay members of the Church, their dedication and their vision of what lies behind the dollar figures. This involves the need for stronger programs of mission at home and abroad, a quickened ministry in the central cities and among migrant workers, fresh and creative approaches to our nation's youth. This involves also the need for new classrooms, adequate housing, and enlarged facilities in theological seminaries. All of these goals are significant when they are seen as a part of the continuing mission of the Church of Jesus Christ.

We have already learned that congregations and individuals are often more interested in contributing to particular projects within the Fifty Million Fund than they are in making undesignated gifts. The needs of the United Presbyterian Church are as wide as its mission, and the list of individual projects that make up the total goal of $50,000,000 is varied enough to offer an exciting challenge to any individual or congregation.

Princeton Seminary has several approved projects within the program of the Fund. Apartments for married students and junior faculty, property for a new classroom building, and a new heating and maintenance plant, all on the approved list, are critical needs. Gifts have already been designated for a portion of the cost of each of these, and additional gifts must be so designated if we are to be assured of funds to finance these essential facilities.

We shall be happy to hear from you about how we may help in achieving the goals of the Fifty Million Fund. Both Dr. Robert M. Skinner and I want to cooperate by sending information and materials to help you interpret the Seminary's mission and goals and by speaking to individuals and groups who may be interested in assisting in reaching them. We depend on your partnership in this major undertaking and in all that we do in the theological enterprise.

Faithfully yours,

James I. McCord
President

PAUL DAVID SHOLIN served two years as minister of the First Presbyterian Church of Belmar, N.J., before going to Tucson, Arizona, in 1947 to be organizing minister of St. Mark's Presbyterian Church. A 1943 graduate of Jones College, he completed Princeton Theological Seminary in 1945 and was ordained by Monmouth Presbytery the following February. Sholin, who was a member of the Presbyterian Church in the United States as a student, worked with rural church projects, the National Council of Churches' Home Missions department, and the New York City Mission Society while in Seminary.

A former Moderator of both his Presbytery and Synod, he has been President of the Tucson Council of Churches, Vice-President of the Arizona Council of Churches, President of the Board of Trustees for Arizona Synod Retirement Housing, and Social Action Chairman of the Tucson Council of Churches. He has also served as Chairman of the Counseling Committee for Church and Society of the General Assembly, and has been a member of the Board of Christian Education since 1956, serving as the Board's Vice-President at this time. His interest in Christian education has included service on Synod and Presbytery committees in that field, and Sholin also served six years as Chairman of the Arizona Synod National Missions Committee.

In community service, Sholin has been Vice-Chairman of the Tucson Commission on Human Relations, President of the Arizona Boys' Ranch and a board member of the Ranch for ten years, a member of Rotary, and a Juvenile Referee in Tucson. Sholin has also been on the boards of the YMCA, the Tucson Community Council, the United Community Campaign, and Big Brothers. He is married, and the father of five children.

Professor Charles W. Forman, a Yale Divinity School missions professor and President of the United Presbyterian Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations, delivered the annual Students'

Lecture on Missions at Princeton Seminary in November. He met several times with informal student groups like this one at Springdale.

Los Angeles pastor Casper I. Glenn, whose Bel Vue Presbyterian Church is located in the area of Watts torn by riots last Summer, met with Princeton Seminary students in the Fall to discuss the racial tension in his community and the mission of the Church in the midst of an outbreak of violence. He was one of the community leaders consulted by California Governor Pat Brown in meeting the riot emergency, and has since been freed, by Presbytery action, of a portion of his parish responsibilities to concentrate on the complex problems of the Watts community.

New co-Presidents of the Friends of Princeton Seminary are Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Erdman, Jr. Elected in November to succeed Mrs. Olive Wrightson Switz, Seminary Trustee who has headed the Friends since its organization in 1961, the Erdmans make their home in Princeton. He is the son of the late Princeton Seminary professor of practical theology, Charles R. Erdman, Sr., a member of the Class of 1891 and in 1925 Moderator of the General Assembly.

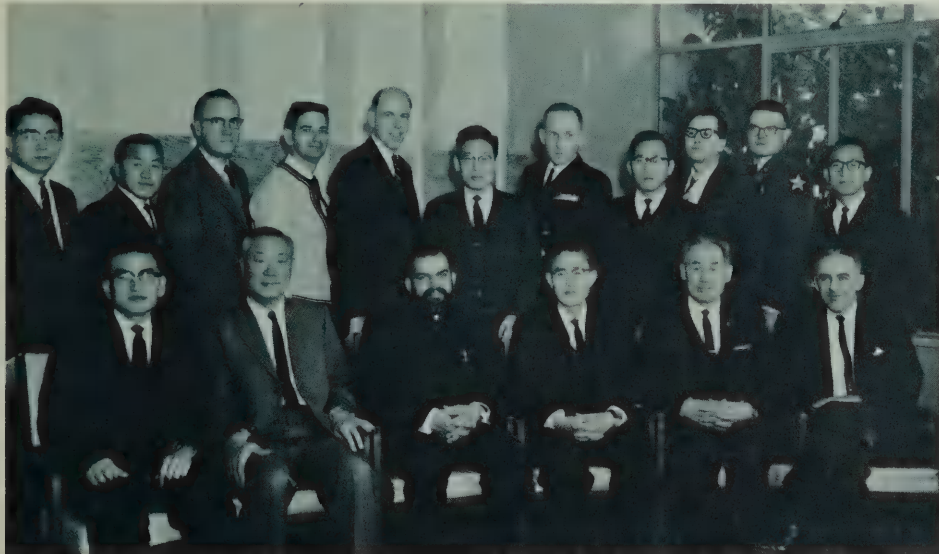

Robert Baker, Dean of the School of Sacred Music, Union Theological Seminary, New York, was the organist for a concert in Miller Chapel on November 2, 1965. His appearance was one of a series being scheduled by Professor David Hugh Jones, left, for the Isabelle McClure Peltier Memorial Organ in the Chapel.

Alumni Office Seeking Collection of Club Songs

Group singing was a popular feature of "club life" at Princeton Seminary before the inauguration of the Campus Center. Secretary of the Seminary, Arthur M. Byers, Jr., asks alumni to forward to him the names of the songs that were most popular during their days of active club membership.

Byers would like to have words, as well as titles, where possible. A song sheet for use at alumni meetings will be prepared from the titles submitted by alumni.

An informal gathering of Princeton Seminary alumni was held in early December when Paul Verghese '54, Associate General Secretary of the World Council on Ecumenical Action, visited Korea. Left to right, (seated) Sung Chun Chun, '48, L. George Paik, '25, Paul Verghese, '54, Kyung Chik Han, '29, Simeon Kang, '52, Stanton Wilson, '58. Standing, Sam Park, '57, Sung Chik Han, '58, E.

Otto DeCamp, '36, E. Lee Nelson, '55, Samuel Moffett, '42, Tai Dong Han, '52, William Kirkman, '60, Jong Sung Rhee, '56, M. M. Irwin, Chaplain Jack Banton, and Choi Hwan Park, '54. Stanton Wilson, who forwarded the photo to Princeton, said the inclusion of Chaplain Banton was an ecumenical act. He has studied at McCormick and Union. Irwin is an honorary alumnus.

ALUMNI GROUPS TO MEET IN FOUR EASTERN AREAS

BLAKE TO OPEN VOCATIONS CONFERENCE

Colorado who served as a chaplain in Philadelphia hospitals, later entered the ministry of the Unitarian-Universalist Association.

Engaged in a Boston program of the neighborhood center-settlement house type at the time of his death, Reeb went to Selma in response to the appeal for aid from Northern clergymen issued by Negro civil rights leaders after the first attack upon demonstrators in Selma. After the second march, which was turned back without violence soon after crossing the bridge leaving the central part of Selma, Reeb and two companions left the Negro section of the community in search of food.

They were attacked on the street by three white men, and Reeb was struck with a wooden club. He died in Montgomery, Alabama, the same night after being taken to the hospital there by ambulance.

The Reeb Lectures have been established by classmates and friends of the slain alumnus, along with other interested persons, to honor the sacrificial devotion to equal human rights exemplified by the ministry and death of James J. Reeb.

The Vocations Conference itself will devote the major portion of its scheduled hours to discussion groups and individual conferences between delegates and Seminary students, faculty and staff.

Leading the discussion sessions, besides members of the faculty and student body, will be individuals currently engaged in the parish ministry, student ministry, teaching, Christian education, administrative service, social work, and other specialized careers in the Church.

Students taking part in the Conference will also attend a "Festival of the Arts" on the evening of Saturday, March 5, which will demonstrate contemporary forms of music and drama that can be used in worship.

Alumni and others have already received nominations forms and a brochure giving an outline of the Conference program. Students who have already reached the Junior year of college or university will be given preference in filling the Conference quota of 250. Others may receive invitations as vacancies occur.

Students attending the Conference must provide their own transportation to and from Princeton. While on campus, they are the guests of Princeton Seminary, with meals and housing (including towels and bed linens) provided for each participant.

ADDRESS CHANGES

■ You will find a new feature in this issue which we are trying on an experimental basis. Address changes of alumni are listed by classes. Very often we receive such changes without any news report. However, for many classmates and friends, the fact of a change has implicit news value. We will experiment with this feature for several issues to see how it works. Alumni comment is invited.

SUMMERTIME CLASS REUNIONS

Dan Reid, '57, proposes a new idea for class reunions. Although it cannot be adopted as an official Seminary program, there is nothing to prevent individuals and classes from working on the idea.

Reid points out that it is virtually impossible for alumni who live at a great distance from the Seminary to return for Alumni Day on the Monday before graduation each June. He suggests that reunion classes (every fifth year) could observe the occasion by attending the Princeton Institute of Theology (this year July 5 to 14). This has some advantages. Busy schedules in June prevent many graduates from traveling to Princeton, but vacations and freer schedules in July would permit travel to Princeton for the Institute.

Class Presidents can take note and alumni, both near and far, can make plans. Dr. Jack Cooper, who directs the Institute will be glad to hear from you. Write to him at the Center for Continuing Education.

PENSION DUES

The Department of Ministerial Relations has warned that many United Presbyterian ministers are on the verge of having their participation in the pension plan lapse because of late payment of dues. It happens to men in all categories of ministry, new and old, and is most often due to neglect by treasurers and remitting officers. Have you checked on your pension payments lately?

ALUMNI ROLL CALL

There is an increase this year in both the number of alumni who are responding and in the size of gifts. In several instances alumni have sent in only token gifts, stating that "we are putting our son through college now, so our gift is nominal." This is understandable. The important fact is that the act of giving was not neglected.

In this connection, former Harvard President Charles William Eliot says, "An institution that cannot rally to its financial assistance the men who have taken its degrees and whose diploma is their passport into the world is in a poor position to ask assistance from others. It is not merely what the alumni give, it is the fact that they do give that is of supreme importance." Have you responded to the 1966 Alumni Roll Call? We hope an increasing number of alumni will respond each year.

AS IT IS WRITTEN —

The train was behind schedule, and Professor Norman Victor Hope was twenty-five minutes late December 12 as he entered the sanctuary of Hanover Street Church, Wilmington, where he has been stated supply since November. The service was underway, with a member of the congregation calmly leading the worshippers. In fact, reports John W. Christie, minister emeritus of Wilmington's Westminster Church and a worshipper at Hanover Street Church that day, nobody seemed much concerned. The bulletin cover might have given them comfort and assurance. Before each member of the congregation was the passage from Romans 15:4:

For whatsoever was written in former days was written for our instruction that by steadfastness and by the encouragement of the Scriptures we might have HOPE.

FACULTY NOTES

■ The United Presbyterian $50 Million Fund has become a major factor in PRESIDENT JAMES I. McCORD's travel schedule. Audiences in Omaha, Nebraska; Trenton and Metuchen, N. J.; and the Presbytery of the Palisades heard President McCord speak in connection with the $50 Million Fund. Besides sermons in Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, and New Jersey churches, the President visited the campuses of Mercersburg Academy, Trinity University, Texas A. and M., the University of Texas, and Baylor University.

SECRETARY OF THE SEMINARY ARTHUR M. BYERS, JR., who began a two-year term January 1 as a member and secretary of the Princeton Township Assistance Board (his second term on the board) was in Puerto Rico in December. He visited the Seminario Evangelico in San Juan, where Raymond L. Strong, '48, is President. On January 6, Byers delivered a paper on "Particular Services Provided by the Seminaries to the Candidates and Ministers" at a Newark, N. J., regional meeting of the Department of Ministerial Relations.

The Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis, meeting at Vanderbilt University in late December, heard Old Testament Professor CHARLES FRITSCH, '35, deliver a paper on "The Antitype." Fritsch presided at a meeting of the National Association of Professors of Hebrew, and was named to a second term as President of the Association. A volume to be published this year in honor of the twenty-fifth year of service by Professor Th. C. Vriezen of the University Utrecht will include a chapter by Dr. Fritsch.

CARL Y. FURUYA, '53, Visiting Professor of Ecumenics this year and a member of the faculty of International Christian University in Tokyo, is the author of "Richard Niebuhr, Christ and Culture," published in Vol. II of A Guide to the Christian Classics, printed in Japan by the United Church of Christ in Japan. Furuya has also completed a translation into Japanese of Karl Barth's Table Talk, edited by John D. Godsey.

Pastoral Care heard SEWARD HILTNER speak during their October meeting in Miami Beach. Hiltner also served as a consultant for the Autumn Program in Marriage Counseling of the Department of Psychiatry of the University of Pennsylvania; at the Flower Hospital in Toledo, Ohio, in December; and at a November forum on "Your Neighbor's Faith" in Buffalo, N. Y. Workshops in which Professor Hiltner participated included one for ministers held in October by Mahoning Presbytery, and two for chaplains of the Veterans Administration in Philadelphia and Cleveland.

NORMAN HOPE spoke four times in September-October on "The Renewal of the Church" at sessions sponsored by the Presbytery of Newton, and on December 1, lectured on "The Development of Religious Toleration" at American University in Washington, D.C. Professor Hope also appeared in lectures this fall at Fourth Presbyterian Church, New York City, the Hitchcock Presbyterian Church of Scarsdale, N.Y., and the Presbyterian Church of Morris Plains, N.J. Four lectures were given at each place, and the respective titles were "Church History," "The Protestant Reformation: Its History and Present-Day Significance," and "The Confession of 1967."

Homiletics Professor DONALD MACLEOD, who continues to serve as interim preacher at the First Presbyterian Church of West Chester, Pa., presented a report on the newly organized Homiletics Society at the December meeting in New York of the Religious Interest Group of the Speech Association of America. In addition to completing a manuscript for publication in the near future, Macleod in recent months has spoken at Lincoln University, met with the General Assembly's Committee on the Standardization of Presbyterian Examination, and conducted a workshop on worship at the Carney's Point, N.J., Presbyterian Church.

A report on the recently established National Foundation for the Arts and Humanities was read to the December meeting of the Society of Biblical Literature and Exegesis at Vanderbilt University by BRUCE M. METZGER, '38. Metzger, a delegate from the Society to the American Council of Learned Societies, was present when President Johnson signed the bill creating the new Arts and Humanities Foundation. Among recent publications by Professor Metzger are a combined edition of the Oxford Annotated Bible with the Oxford Annotated Apocrypha, and a textbook, written at the request of the Council for Religion in Independent Schools, entitled The New Testament, Its Background, Growth and Content. He also contributed a chapter to The Bible in Modern Scholarship, a symposium.

Three lectures on the Reformed tradition in worship were delivered at Western Theological Seminary in Holland, Michigan, in early October by JAMES HASTINGS NICHOLS, who also spoke at Calvin Theological Seminary in Grand Rapids. The Princeton Seminary Church History Professor attended a November Conference on the Humanities at Princeton University, on November 21 delivered an historical address in Shippensburg, Pa., at the observances of the 200th anniversary of the ordination of the first pastor of the Middle Spring Church and the establishment of the Presbytery of Carlisle. Lectures at Kalamazoo College on the Vatican Council and the delivery of the annual Dahlberg Lectures on Ecumenics at Colgate Rochester Divinity School completed the Fall schedule for Nichols.

Homiletics Professor PAUL SCHERER delivered a series of lectures January 18-20, at a convocation of ministers of the Cumberland Presbyterian Church held in Memphis, Tenn.

Returning in September from Oxford University where he took part in a Working Party on Church and Society conducted by the World Council of Churches, Ecumenics Professor M. RICHARD SHAULL, '41, scheduled Fall lecture visits to the campuses of the University of Michigan, the University of Chicago, and Amherst College. In January, Shaull went to Chile for a ten-day conference on Church and Society.

JAMES E. WALLACE, '60, Admissions Officer and Assistant Professor in Church and Society, attended a consultation on "Recruitment for the Ministry" held at Racine, Wisconsin, October 15-17, under National Council of Churches auspices. On December 11 he was at Boston University for a meeting of the In-terseminary Committee on Church and Community. A recent issue of the Journal of Legal Education carried an article by Wallace entitled "An Excursion into the Affinities Between Law and the Behavioral Sciences."

The Confession of 1967 has been filling the schedule of CHARLES C. WEST during the past semester, with addresses on the Confession before the Presbyteries of New York City, Western New York, Bloomington, and Binghamton, as well as synod Board of Christian Education representatives and several congregations. West went to the St. Louis meeting of the World Order Study Conference of the National Council of Churches October 20-23, and addressed the John R. Mott Centennial Colloquium at Cornell in early December on "Recent Changes in the Marxist World." West reports that in his spare time he also taught a course at Union Seminary, New York.

A four-session series on "Basic Principles of Christian Education" at the First Presbyterian Church of Morristown, N.J., opened the Fall activities of Christian Education Professor D. CAMPBELL WYCKOFF. In late September Wyckoff addressed a Christian Education Conference of New Jersey A.M.E. Zion ministers held at the Seminary, and in October lectured at Southwestern Baptist Seminary in Fort Worth, Texas. The Minnesota Council of Churches' Consultation on the Ministry with Children, held in Minneapolis in November, heard Wyckoff discuss "The Mission of the Church," and the New York Metropolitan Religious Education Association, meeting at Holy Family Catholic Church, heard a Wyckoff lecture on "Current Developments in Curriculum." In January Professor Wyckoff was a consultant for a Workshop on Evaluation in Christian Education, held in Atlantic City by the National Council of Churches.

Dear Fellow-Ministers:

Theology is now a shambles. That is the long and short of it. We have entered a period that has witnessed a massive defection from neo-orthodoxy, the point of view which was dominant during the past three decades. Neo-orthodoxy has been judged for its failure to inspire great preaching, for the lacuna that has been left in the field of ethics, for its inability to motivate the Church in her mission, and for its failure to give the believer any real understanding of the nature of the struggle that is going on in history. Thus a new generation experiences an absence of meaning in today's world and is unable to participate significantly in the struggle that has engaged mankind. A theology which has tended to limit God's action either to the past or to the future and has taught that we live in an interim has had little light to shed on the problem of a Christian style of life during this interim.

The Biblical positivism that has been a part of neo-orthodoxy has also been eroded, and it was inevitable that the older theology, shorn of its base, would crumble. The most dramatic development in the new period is the so-called "death of God" theology. I mention this because it is probably the most publicized theological movement in America today. It was the subject of Time's Easter cover story. It appeals to journalism and is widely noted in the newspapers. It is being read and discussed by the man on the street. Indeed, theology has moved from the Summa to the pamphlet, from the hard-cover tome to the paperback. What I should like to suggest is that, while some of the "death of God" theology is frivolous, it cannot be adequately answered with a frivolous response. Nor can it be dismissed as evidence of one more aberration of a beatnik generation. The "death of God" theology, when it is serious, is pointing to a haunting characteristic of our age, namely, the sense of the absence of God.

But this is not a new movement. It is as old as Psalm 22 and as the cry of dereliction from the Cross. It can be found in the sixteenth century in the thought of St. John of the Cross. Throughout the Middle Ages theologians wrestled with the hidden God. He was either the God who was ineffable and could not be expressed, who had to be described with negative attributes, or else, as in St. John of the Cross' Dark Night of the Soul, the God who gives himself to the believer at the beginning of his Christian experience only to withdraw and become absent in order that the believer might be led into a spiritual pilgrimage from sight to faith, into a deeper apprehension of the majesty and mystery of God's character.

Paul Tillich has said for a generation that he did not believe in God, if by God one means the God of supra-naturalism. He affirmed his belief in the "God beyond God," the One who is not merely at the periphery of life but who constitutes the "Ground of Being." Even Barth and the Barthians have talked as much about the concealed God as the revealed God. They have stressed Deus absconditus as well as Deus revelatus, and have insisted that God has concealed himself in order to reveal himself. And this, of course, is what the life of Jesus reflects from beginning to end: Deity is concealed in the life of a humble first-century Jew who took the form of a servant in order to reveal the glory and majesty of God.

The "death of God" movement in our time is a sobering testimony to an erosion of faith and to the agonizing void that is left in the lives of men during the last third of the twentieth century. "God is dead" is not to be taken as a literal statement, but the absence of God must be taken as a literal transcription of modern man's consciousness. It is not enough simply to affirm that He is present, but we must make His presence real through our lives and ministries. Only in this way do we bear witness to Him who is active in the life of the Church and also the world today.

This does not mean that significant theological work is not being done today. It is — and in many areas. Nor does it mean that theology is no longer essential. Never in this century has there been a greater need for profound reflection on the meaning of the Gospel for a world in revolution. Nor does it imply that theology is not necessary for the work of the ministry. All of us share the responsibility for setting forth the God who is not absent from His creation, who is concerned for the struggle that is going on in this age, and who sent His Son to reveal the depth of that concern. Perhaps in the providence of God the "death of God" theology will force us into deeper inquiry and effect a renewal in theology, a renewal that will produce the preaching, mission, and style of life that the world can still hear and see when it is embodied in the lives of men. What Helmut Thielicke has been saying about the credibility of the witness is apropos here.

Faithfully yours,

James I. McCord.

JOHN BENNETT TO BE COMMENCEMENT SPEAKER

JAMES CLARKE RETURNS

TO PREACH BACCALAUREATE

President John C. Bennett of Union Theological Seminary in New York will be the speaker for the 154th annual Princeton Seminary Commencement at 10:30 a.m., Tuesday, June 7, in the Chapel of Princeton University.

His address will conclude a Commencement schedule that opens at 4:00 p.m., Sunday, June 5, when former Professor James W. Clarke, who resigned in 1959 from the Seminary's chair of homiletics, will be the preacher for the Baccalaureate service in First Presbyterian Church.

The intervening Monday, June 6, will be packed with the annual Alumni Day activities, headed by the Fiftieth Reunion of the Class of 1916, and reunions for all graduating classes of years ending in "6" or "1".

The 1966 Alumni Day events will include the dedication of a memorial plaque honoring James J. Reeb, '53, who was fatally beaten in Selma, Ala., during civil rights demonstrations last year. President Emeritus John A. Mackay, '15, will be the speaker for the dedication.

Other activities on Alumni Day will include club and class breakfasts, two discussion periods on Arend T. van Leeuwen's book, "Christianity in World History" led by members of the Seminary faculty, the traditional Presidential Reception at Springdale, and the annual alumni meeting and banquet. Additional breakfasts for clubs and classes have been scheduled for Tuesday morning. The times and places for the scheduled breakfasts will be sent directly to alumni through class and club organizations.

Commencement Speaker John Bennett, who assumed the Union Presidency in 1963, last spoke on the Princeton Seminary campus in 1963 when he delivered a paper at the Sesquicentennial Conference on "Ethics and Politics in World Affairs." Acting president of Union for a year prior to his permanent appointment, Bennett was for twenty-three years a teacher at that seminary. He earlier taught at the Pacific School of Religion from 1938 to 1943, and from 1930 to 1943 was on the faculty of Auburn Theological Seminary prior to its association with Union. He had taught for three years at Union, beginning in 1927, before going to Auburn. Dr. Bennett received his undergraduate education at Williams College, and holds the degrees of A.B. in Theology and M.A. from Oxford University.

An ordained minister of the United Church of Christ, President Bennett is co-chairman of the editorial board of Christianity and Crisis, which he helped found, and the author of eight books, including Social Salvation, Nuclear Weapons and the Conflict of Conscience, and Christianity and Communism Today.

He has delivered numerous lectureships at other schools and seminaries in this country and Canada, and has been active in ecumenical affairs.

James W. Clarke, who left Princeton Seminary in 1959 to become minister of the Second Presbyterian Church in Richmond, Va., is currently living in Memphis, Tenn., after becoming Minister Emeritus of the Richmond congregation in 1965.

Dr. Clarke, who was educated at the Universities of Glasgow, Scotland, and Montreal, Canada, completed his theological studies at McGill University. His first pastorate was in Montreal, and after five years he was called in 1932 to Knox Church in Winnipeg. He was recognized for his services during the Depression in that city, a civic honor that matched the Military Cross he earned for service in World War I.

In 1941 Dr. Clarke went to McCormick Seminary as Professor of Homiletics, and in 1944 he was called to the Second Presbyterian Church of St. Louis, where he served until coming to Princeton in 1955.

The author of Dynamic Preaching and a contributor to the Interpreter's Bible, he was named National Preacher of the Year by the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., in 1955.

HILTNER CITED BY ACADEMY OF RELIGION AND MENTAL HEALTH

The trustees of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health on April 27, awarded Professor Seward Hiltner the Sixth Annual Award of the Academy for his pioneering work in developing relationships between religion and health.

The Academy called special attention to Hiltner's work in the relationships between religion and mental health in a career that "extends over thirty years" and which has exerted an influence that has been "widely felt among all religious groups and in the healing professions."

Professor of Theology and Personality at Princeton Seminary since 1961, Hiltner's award from the Academy was given in earlier years to Paul Tillich, Gordon W. Allport of Harvard, Alexuis Potts (founder of the Institute for Mental Health), George C. Anderson (founder of the Academy of Religion and Mental Health), and Philadelphia physician Kenneth E. Appel.

After receiving his doctorate at the University of Chicago, Hiltner headed the Council for Clinical Training, and later the Department of Pastoral Services of the Commission on Religion and Health, and the Commission on Ministry in Institutions, of the Federal Council of Churches (now the National Council). He has taught at the University of Chicago, served as a lecturer at Yale and Union seminaries, and held special lectureships at numerous other theological schools, colleges and universities.

He has been Alfred P. Sloan Visiting Professor at the Menninger School of Psychiatry, and still serves as a consultant and member of the faculty at Menninger. In 1959 Hiltner was a Fulbright Research Fellow at Otagao University in New Zealand. He was the founder and first secretary of the Association of Seminary Professors in the Practical Fields.

Professor Ernest Kaesemann of the University of Tuebingen holds an informal discussion with students during his visit to the campus in March to deliver three lectures on "The Interpretation of Paul."

Warfield Lecturer Otto Weber, Professor of Reformed Theology at the University of Goettingen, chats with Mr. and Mrs. Harm DeVries at dinner. DeVries, one of this year's Ecumenical Fellows, studied at Goettingen. "Calvin's Doctrine of the Church" was the topic of Weber's six lectures, delivered in February.

FRIAR BREAKFAST SET

The annual Friar Club Alumni Breakfast will be held on Commencement Day, Tuesday, June 7, at 8:00 a.m., at the Peacock Inn. Wives are cordially invited. Please send reservations NOW to Charles H. Davis, 17 West Main Street, Newark, Del. 19711.

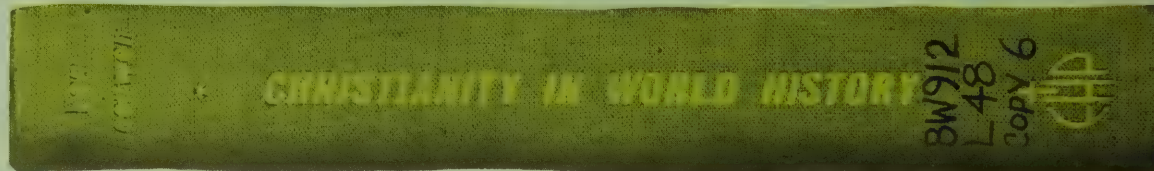

ALUMNI DAY RESOURCE VOLUME REVIEWS

Three members of the Princeton Seminary Alumni Association, J. Charles McKirachan, '33; Richard J. Oman, '53; and Lacy R. Harwell, '57; have prepared reviews of Arend T. van Leeuwen's book, "Christianity in World History." Copies of the book, which will be discussed in two sessions during the June 6, Alumni Day program, may be ordered from the Seminary's Theological Book Agency for $7.00 plus fifteen cents postage. The volume will also be for sale on Alumni Day.

☐ CHRISTIANITY IN WORLD HISTORY

by Arend Th. van Leeuwen, translated by H. H. Hoskins Edinburgh House Press, 1964, 487 pp.

As reviewed by

J. CHARLES MCKIRACHAN, '33

This book's appearance is described by Dr. Hendrik Kraemer as an "event" in the Christian process of our time. The book combines a set of qualities seldom to be seen together in one author: scholar, linguist, anthropologist, historian, theologian and missionary. Dr. van Leeuwen graduated from Leiden University in Holland and in preparation for a missionary career in Indonesia he majored in oriental languages and Islam. He taught in the theological seminary at Malang in East Java. Appointed to teach the history of religions at the theological college at Djakarta, a serious car accident enforced a mode of activity which resulted in this exceptional book.

We have here much more than a very penetrating anthropological history of the great religions from one who has known them at first hand. We have also perhaps the most far-reaching conclusions and prophetic analyses of the direction the major religions will pursue and more especially Christianity. Here we discover the description of the "secular" future of the church as a working out of the democratic as opposed to the ontocratic pattern of political and religious history. This distinction which is basic to the argument of the book suggests that from the beginning, the Biblical origin and development differed fundamentally from the oriental attitudes surrounding it. The Biblical attitude centered in the sovereignty of God who looked with favor on his people and called them to mission in the world. By contrast the oriental notion was ontocratic, placing divine power in the hands of dynastic traditions and seeking security, peace and prosperity through the stability guaranteed by the divine authority and power of such dynastics. Therefore, the oriental cultures were "static" in large measure whereas the Jewish and Christian cultures have been "dynamic."

The movement through which Christendom is moving in our day is the abolition of "Christendom" with the last vestiges of "ontocracy" — authoritarian religious rule and the movement of the Christian faith into the world-wide secular world in fulfillment of the will of God who loves the world.

The crisis we face, suggests the author, arises precisely from something which never has taken place, certainly to the same degree before, in history. Our effort to evangelize the world by direct assault has slowed almost to a halt and under careful scrutiny has enjoyed limited and qualified success compared with the visionary and ecstatic anticipations former generations of missionary Christians have entertained. Now, however, the whole world is engaged in a mad scramble to get their hands on and their minds into western-Christian technology. All are now avid for our culture. They want our education, our medicine, our science and our technics. Never did one culture almost beg to be embraced by another culture. The bitterest battles of time have raged to resist such cultural interpenetration. Now western technology is being drawn into a maelstrom which scatters it world-wide.

The point of the author is: we must welcome this opportunity to share our technology as a vehicle of our faith in Jesus Christ. Just as Paul and Timothy sought the commercial travel lanes of the Roman world, so the Twentieth Century God-given opportunity is to scatter the good seed of the word of God in the secular setting as secular business people, scientists and technologists. For, the Christian faith cannot be separated from western technological culture. Where one goes, it is our Christian task to see the other goes.

Quite appropriately therefore Dr. van Leeuwen is currently engaged, among other things, as Director of the "Kerk en Wereld" Institute in the Netherlands Reformed Church at Driebergen in Holland, which is concerned with mobilizing the church and the laity for ecumenical service in the modern secular world.

A REPRODUCTION of the Mayflower Compact was deposited in Speer Library this Spring, the presentation of the Society of Mayflower Descendants of the State of New Jersey. Wallace W. Boyce, Deputy Governor of the Society, made the presentation to Librarian, Kenneth S. Gapp.

As reviewed by
RICHARD J. OMAN, '53

Dr. van Leeuwen, Director of the "Kerk en Wereld" Institute of the Netherlands Reformed Church at Driebergen in Holland, has written a demanding book. There is something valuable to be found here for Bible student, cultural anthropologist, missionary, pastor — indeed, for any concerned participant in those explosive changes taking place throughout today's world.

The author issues a call for an ecumenical theology of history, "a united, ecumenical effort to think theologically" about the challenges posed by the interaction between East and West, and between "Christianization" and secularization.

An opening chapter outlines the meaning of the end of Western domination, together with the rising ferment and independence of African and Asian peoples. Dr. van Leeuwen then probes both Testaments and shows their creative relationship to Western history. The essential features of the principal civilizations of Asia, differing in so many aspects from the history of Western civilization, are outlined, with special attention focused on two key words, "ontocracy" and "theocracy." Two chapters cover the spread of Western civilization, the reaction of the Oriental churches, with special emphasis on Islam, and the new context provided by the scientific and technological revolutions.

That the context involves the non-Western world is argued by the writer as he proceeds to demonstrate that science and technology are but part of "a larger revolutionary process which seems likely to uproot and destroy the cornerstone of all human society as we have known it . . . That cornerstone is religion." (p. 402) The last chapter of the book suggests some ways for the Church to fulfill its missionary obligation in this new "planetary" world.

This reviewer is grateful for such a book, and especially so for three reasons: The author's interpretation of Scripture as the basis for the confrontation between East and West; his sharp — though brief — delineations of some of the Eastern faiths; and his thought-provoking suggestions on new approaches by the Church to the world. Such suggestions are not complete — but then, in a world of accelerated change, they cannot be.

As reviewed by
LACY R. HARWELL, '57

The van Leeuwen thesis is that, far from being alien to God, secularization is God's work. Secularization is God's instrument for breaking up ontocratic patterns which keep the life of man static. Ontocratic patterns deny man participation in the shaping of his history. Ontocracy may take the form of religion, ideology, even secularism, that is, ontocracy may be anything which tries to escape or hinder the movement of history by self-contained, unchanging, ultimate concepts of history.

God is the declared destroyer of all ontocratic forms. In our time secularization, carried out primarily through technology, is God's destroyer of ontocratic forms. The consequence of the destruction of ontocracy is the deliverance of man and the whole world to live in history, to take responsibility for shaping history, and the freedom to use all creation functionally.

This process of destroying ontocracy and setting man free in history was begun in Jesus Christ. In secularization, God's work begun in Jesus Christ, has reached world-wide proportions. Secularization through technological expansion is a consequence of the Gospel first declared to man in Jesus Christ.

At first reading van Leeuwen appears as the latest chapter in the Kraemer-Hocking debate on the relationship of Christianity to non-Christian religions. It is certainly that, but it is far more. Not only is there no further point to the dialogue between religions, the Christian religion included, this is the end of the "theology of missions." The day has dawned when all theology must become "missionary theology." The task before us is not what shall we say to non-Christian religions but what shall we say to the secular technocratic world of our time?

Van Leeuwen is not just calling "missionaries" to account; he is challenging the validity of a seminary that has as its chief goal the "training of ministers for the parish." He is challenging the integrity of the parish congregation which exists primarily to nurture, support, and protect its own members.

When it is understood, this book is going to blow up a storm of controversy. It must not only be read but re-read, debated, and read again.

vocations conference draws capacity attendance to campus

A 1966 Conference on Church Vocations that offered the largest selection of discussion topics and the greatest variety of leadership in the history of the six-year old series brought some 250 college and university students to the campus March 4-6.

A special arts festival, added to the program this year, included the presentation of the musical "For Heaven's Sake!" by a campus cast directed by Mrs. Virginia Damon of the Speech Department. Other artistic presentations were a worship service using a jazz liturgy composed and directed by Paul Knopf of New York, and the drama "Christ in the Concrete City" staged by the Brown Memorial Players from Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore, under the direction of Mrs. Richard Turk III.

The biggest problem in organizing and conducting the Vocations Conference is the difficulty of accommodating participants. In 1965 it became necessary to begin eliminating students who had not completed the first two years of college. Restricting attendance to the older students, however, still brought more applications than could be accepted. Approximately forty women students, and 180 men, can be accommodated on campus with cots crammed into every corner. With students coming from as far away as California, Texas, and Florida, space was exhausted early, and applications received as many as seven days after the original mailing had to be returned to the students with regrets.

Annette Ahlman, '63, discusses her responsibilities in the field of social work with a group of Conference participants.

A participating collegian throws out a question during a discussion period in the Alumni Room of the Campus Center.

With composer-conductor Paul Knopf at the piano, the musicians rehearse for the jazz liturgy that formed the Saturday evening service of worship in Miller Chapel.

Ann Wilson, '66, sings "Gimmie God Blues" to J. Randall Nichols, '67, during the performance of "For Heaven's Sake!" in the Campus Center Auditorium.

ALUMNI FALL CONFERENCE SET FOR SEPTEMBER 15th AND 16th

Dr. and Mrs. N. Gordon Cosby of the Church of the Saviour, Washington, D. C. will lead the 1966 Alumni Fall Conference September 15-16, as a "family team."

"Inward Journey, Outward Journey" will be the theme for the conference. The ministry of the Church of the Saviour under the leadership of Mr. Cosby is reported in the book, "Call to Commitment," by Elizabeth O'Conner. The book will serve as a resource volume for the conference, and may be purchased for $2.80 plus ten cents postage through the Seminary's Book Agency.

Because Mrs. Cosby will be present to speak at the conference, the Alumni Association's Executive Council has announced that the wives of alumni are invited to attend the conference. Due to the absence of any campus accommodations for couples, alumni who wish to bring their wives must arrange in advance for overnight lodging with friends or in area motels and hotels.

CLASS REUNION LETTERS

Each year on Alumni Day, held in conjunction with the annual Commencement, reunions are held on the Princeton Seminary campus by alumni whose classes had been graduated five, ten, fifteen, etc., years earlier. The Golden Anniversary classes, and other reunion classes of younger (but respectable) vintage have been asked to submit "life in review" letters to share with classmates and others. The following messages were received and read at the 1965 reunions. Each reunion class shall be asked for similar letters this year and in following years.

We shall continue to ask each reunion class to prepare letters for sharing in this manner through the Alumni News.

□ REUNION CLASS OF 1915 — 50 Years

"H. C." RITTER writes from Ormond Beach, Florida: "Retired in 1956 after 41 years of active service. Moved to Florida. Found great pleasure in our small home near the beach. Flowers and fish are our special interest. Worship with O. B. Methodist Church where I am the Pastor's assistant. On March 5th my dear wife Maria passed to other side of life. We are more than conquerors through our faith in the risen Christ. The influence of Princeton Seminary has greatly enriched my life."

LESLIE L. LEASE, from Walkersville, Maryland. "Regret greatly that I shall be absent from the reunion. My wife and I both have had a severe virus and have not gotten over it. May God bless all you do as you gather for this 50 year reunion. We served as missionaries of the Reformed Episcopal Church in India 1915 to 1930 and still keep our interest in India. Now I do supply preaching nearby. We are near our children, all four married and having families, working in Presbyterian Churches."

SAMUEL W. BEITLER, from Erie, Pennsylvania. "A hearty clasp of hands across the spaces. My 88 years do not permit me to travel to Princeton. Three pastorates claimed my time until 1942 when I retired. Nearly every Sunday since then I have been preaching in the pulpit. Now am interim pastor in Erie. God bless you all. "My wife died two years ago. Helen and I looked back on our three years at Princeton as the mountain-top experience of our lives. It was an unmatched pleasure."

MAURICE S. WHITE, from Washington, D. C. "Health does not permit me to travel. My wife died two years ago. Helen and I looked back on our three years at Princeton as the mountain-top experience of our lives. It was an unmatched pleasure."

HANSEN BERGEN, from La Jolla, California. "I definitely planned to return to Princeton June 5-8, but at last moment could not leave my wife, who suffered severe accident in Spain where we have recently been traveling. We had to cancel all our shore trips for the next five weeks! We had a wonderful orthopedic surgeon on the Kungsholm, and arrived home safely. More power to you all!"

PETER K. EMMONS, from Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania. "After serving Westminster Church in Scranton 1927 to 1958, decided to get out before they shot me, so retired to Stroudsburg where I was pastor from 1916 to 1919. Our Poconos are lovely as a retirement spot, and our neighbors are the nicest. Am working as hard as before but without the strain of keeping an institution functioning. Was thrilled in May to receive the Golden Deeds Award from the local Exchange Club. We thank our Heavenly Father for his gracious providence."

ROBERT D. WORKMAN, from La Jolla, California. "Retired in 1947 after 32 years active duty in the Navy. For 10 years have traveled around country visiting Sigma Chi Fraternity Chapters as Scholarship and Spiritual adviser. More recently have cut down the travel, but attend fraternity workshops and conferences and help in our local churches. Go fishing and golfing. Every two years go back to visit daughters in Pennsylvania. Will visit Princeton, too, this year."

PAUL E. HINCAMP, from Holland, Michigan. "Retired in 1957 after 39 years on the faculty of Hope College. Had a stroke in June 1963. Celebrated 50th wedding anniversary June 24, 1964. Am able to walk with a cane."

DREWRY I. JONES, from Hendersonville, North Carolina. "After five years in final pastorate at Big Rockfish and Sherwood Presbyterian Churches near Fayetteville, N. C., we retired in Hendersonville, a good summer resort town in western North Carolina. Delightful climate. We enjoy good health and the fellowship of a fine church. Our daughter Juanita is a student at the Presbyterian School of Christian Education in Richmond, Virginia."

JACOB V. KOONTZ, from Newburgh, Indiana. "I shall never forget the fellowship at Princeton. Wish I could be with you but the Lord has not willed that. I wish I could be with you and see you all again."

San Diego area alumni met on Tuesday, April 19, at the Town and Country Hotel in San Diego to hear President James I. McCord speak and to elect officers. The thirty-five ex-students named president Ward Bjerke, '45, minister of the East San Diego United Presbyterian Church, to head the chapter. Skinner, '34, were present, as were the following alumni: Arlo Duba, '55, Janice Anderson, '65, Charles Miller, '53, Raymond Lumley, '52, Jane Magnan, '64, Edward Breitbach, '58, Thomas Brown, '59, Helen McCaa, Robert Jacks, '59, Carolyn Symmes, '57, David McDowell, '60, John Cairns, '64, Cy Rowell, '65, Billie Smith, '48, Merle Leake, '57, Ruth McKelvie, '65, Leslie Everitt, '65, Richard Turner, '64, Richard Hutchinson, '58, Dorothy Specht, '65, Dave Haw, '63, Ann Haw, '62, Paul Westman, '65, Norman Myer, '65, Gary Myers, '65, Ernest Freund, '65, James Morrison, '58, Charles Sommers, '60, William Causey, '60, Ann Jackman, '64, William Webster, '55, Richard Knowles, '62, Sharon Rise, '64, Genevieve Metz, '65, Harriet Prichard, '54, Frank Gillespie, '40.

MARRIAGES

- '62 HARRY A. FREEBAIRN to Carol Judy Volmer, June 26, 1965, Drexel Hill, Pennsylvania
- '64 ALLEN D. KOEHN to Linda C. Swett, August 28, 1965

JAMES P. LYTTLE, from Monmouth, Illinois. "The keynote of my ministry has been to preach the unsearchable riches of grace in Christ. Had four pastorates in the former U. P. Church: Second Church New York City; First Church, Xenia, Ohio; West Allis, Milwaukee, Wisconsin; United Church, Prospect, Pennsylvania. Retired in 1957. Have had two interim pastorates in Pennsylvania and three in Illinois since then. We plan to go to the United Presbyterian retirement center in Washington, Iowa. Have been moderator of three presbyteries, two synods and served on Board of Directors of Pittsburgh Seminary and of the governing board of my alma mater, Monmouth College. Great grief came at loss of my wife and the death of our only son, a casualty of World War II."

PAUL C. MELROSE, from Corte Madera, California. "I live ten miles north of San Francisco with my wife and daughter. We retired in 1956 from the Commission on Ecumenical Mission and Relations, then became stated supply in Monte Rio in 1957. After missionary experience in China, our American pastorate was quite different. We plan to fly to Far East (May 1965) to visit our daughter Marie in Korea and have one more 'look-see' in Hong Kong, Manila, Formosa and Japan on the way. We have five children. Jack is a teacher, Hugh is an engineer with Boeing in Seattle, Marie is in Korea, Jean lives with us and Sylvia has her family in Seattle, where her husband works with a dry dock firm. At the time of reunion we will be in Korea, so cannot join you in Princeton."

JOHN W. ISCHY, from Windermere, Florida. "Recently celebrated my 80th birthday with a surprise 'open house' for the occasion. Am living in the community of my former pastorate. Am almost completely recovered from a severe stroke, without impairment of faculties." John Ischy was pastor of Windermere Union Church for more than 40 years. The Chapel of this church has been named in his honor.

SAMUEL F. FRANKLIN, from Tuscaloosa, Alabama. "As class scribe, I have been in touch with our class regularly since graduation. Am completing my 14th year at Stillman College, the Southern Presbyterian Church's only educational institution for Negro youth. It has grown from a junior college to an accredited four-year senior college. We now have an exchange relation with the University of Indiana, which holds great promise. Psychology, history and education have been my fields of interest. We have a comfortable cottage on campus with flowers and shrubbery which we enjoy. Three married daughters, nine grandchildren. Hope to see you at Princeton."

NEVIN H. SCHAAF, from Coral Gables, Florida. "The lines are fallen unto me in pleasant places. The sun shines abundantly in south-east Florida and I have continued to keep well. Classmates who come to Miami area are invited to ring my telephone! Salutations to all."

MICHELE FRASCA, from Binghamton, New York. "By birth Italian, by choice American, by predestination a Presbyterian, by the grace of God a Christian. Served Board of National Missions as bilingual pastor, prepared by last congregation to make the transition to all English-speaking work. Retired in 1956 at age of 68. In 1957 began as Minister of Visitation in West Presbyterian Church. Have served on Presbytery Committees and been commissioner to Synod twice and to General Assembly thrice. I taught a Men's Bible Class, make recording for the shut-in as hobby, plan really to retire this year. Mrs. Frasca serves in women's groups. Our son George is a mechanical engineer with General Electric and an elder in the church."

TOYOHICO KAGAWA, a member of the Class of 1915. This is a footnote to Kagawa's life story which relates him at the close of his life to Princeton Seminary. In 1959, Edward Rodisch, 1940, was in Japan in an visitation program for pastors. Kagawa had suffered a heart attack in his home, and Rodisch was the first person to call from the church after this seizure. Kagawa was too ill to receive visitors at his bedside, but Rodisch had prayer outside his bedroom door with Kagawa's wife. She gave him a small dish painted by Kagawa, a gift greatly cherished by the Rodisches. Kagawa died on April 23, 1960.

☐ REUNION CLASS OF 1920 — 45 Years

FRANK DECATUR WHITE, from Tulsa, Oklahoma. "In 1920, I accepted a call to the First Baptist Church, Havre, Montana. Experience in flour mills and catering during college gave me experience which I used for many years in helping churches and other groups to cook and cater meals. Wrote "Table Talk" cook book which had a large sale. Have lectured throughout the U.S.A. and Canada. Married Grace Harrison of Tulsa. After 34 years of happy married life Grace died of cancer. Our daughter Carolyn is married and lives in Great Falls, Montana."

MARCUS GRETHER, from Colorado. "Spent seventeen years as pastor in Fort Collins, Colorado, resigned in 1957, then spent four years at Estes Park as interim supply there

HOMRIGHAUSEN RETURNS FROM OVERSEAS ALUMNI VISITS

Professor Elmer G. Homrighausen, '24, has returned to Princeton after extended travels in East and Southeast Asia, the Middle East, Egypt, Latin America and East and South Africa. "Dean Homey," who has served on the Seminary faculty since 1938, last year reached the mandatory retirement age for administrative appointments and returned to his teaching duties on a full time basis.

The current year is his first sabbatical leave since he assumed the deanship in 1955. Because of his long experience in ecumenical affairs and his contacts with students on the Princeton Seminary campus, Homrighausen was asked by the Seminary's Board of Trustees to spend a portion of the year visiting overseas alumni in a preliminary investigation of possible programs of continuing education for Princetonians serving abroad.

"Both Mrs. Homrighausen and myself want to express our great appreciation for the generosity and kindness shown us by alumni around the world," said Dr. Homrighausen. "Especially do I want to thank all those who replied to inquiries on the subject of continuing education for our 800 overseas alumni."

While Homrighausen did not visit certain areas where Seminary representatives had recently called, such as Korea, Japan, Formosa, Australia and New Zealand, as well as the British Isles and Europe, he missed little else.

"Princeton Seminary is justifiably proud of students from abroad who have studied here, along with American students now servicing the Church abroad. It will continue its tradition of welcoming students from many nations and cultures who wish to utilize our resources in preparation for services to our sister churches in other areas of the world. It is our intention that these alumni shall be assisted in continuing their theological education, personal development, and effectiveness in service to Christ and His Church."

Professor Homrighausen is currently at work on a lengthy report of his contacts and interviews abroad, along with preliminary recommendations for consideration in developing ways of guiding the continuing education of alumni in service outside of the United States.

and elsewhere. In 1963 was in a serious auto accident. My wife almost died, but now continues to gain strength. Son Herbert, a Princeton Seminary graduate, has served at the Theological Seminary in Chiang Mai, Thailand. He also worked on a revision of the Thai Bible. Another son helps me at home. We have three daughters, one a nurse, one a high school teacher, another a supervisor in the Sterling, Colorado, school system. Peace to all the class!"

FRED T. MCGILL, from Greenville, South Carolina. "After graduation I came to South Carolina then sailed to India as missionary of the Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church. We were married in 1920, have five daughters, all married, with a total of six grandsons and ten granddaughters. We returned from India for health reasons in 1922. Served churches in Greenwood, Cross Hill, Greer and Greenville, all in South Carolina, plus a year in Crawfordsville, Georgia in Home Missions. Retired in 1962 but have served several vacant churches since then."

ARTHUR V. BOAND, from New Orleans, Louisiana. "Was pastor in San Antonio, Texas for 24 years, then fourteen years at Dallas, and retired in 1964 on my seventieth birthday. On June first 1964 I came to St. Charles Avenue Presbyterian Church in New Orleans as Interim Pastor. Although officially retired, I have just finished the most thrilling year of my forty-six years in the ministry."

☐ REUNION CLASS OF 1930 — 35 Years

PAUL L. STUMPF, reported from Arlington Heights, Illinois, that he and his wife, along with the KORTEINGS and SCHEIDEMANTLES had planned a trip to Europe late in the summer, a fact which prevented all from coming to class reunion in June.

CLAIR MORROW, pastor of Calvary Presbyterian Church in Pasadena, California, states that this church was the first in California to complete their 50 Million Fund Campaign in a pilot project for the General Assembly. Paul McKelvey, an elder of this congregation, was elected Moderator of the General Assembly in 1961. The Morrows have two married sons, one a Lieutenant Commander in the Naval Air Corps, the other teaches in junior high school. Clair is president of the Board of Trustees of Monte Vista Grove Homes for retired ministers.

GERRITT E. MOUW, pastor of the Union Presbyterian Church in Monroe, Wisconsin, has two sons completing law school, John in 1965 and Edward in 1966. For twenty-four years Gerritt was chaplain in the U. S. Air Force, retiring in 1958 to become pastor at Monroe. He has been engaged in Rotary Club, County Red Cross program, United Fund and Chairman of Disaster Relief after a tornado wrought $3,000,000 in damage locally. Works on Presbytery Committees, enjoys hunting and fishing in northern Wisconsin.

PAUL E. RICKABAUGH is pastor of the Dayspring Presbyterian Church in Yonkers, New York. He began his ministry at Port Carbon, Pennsylvania, became an Army Chaplain in 1943 with the 78th Infantry until 1947, then moved to North Presbyterian Church and in 1951 came to Yonkers. There are four children: a married daughter who is a graduate nurse; a married son, Paul, Jr.; a son, Dean, at Roanoke College; and a daughter, Sandra Jeanne, in high school.

BRANSFORD EUBANK reported from Cross Cut, Texas, that he served as a missionary in China from 1930 to 1937, then pastored a church in Menard, Texas, taught five years at Daniel Baker College, turned to farming and raising cows, taught vocational agriculture in Howard Payne College. As to family, he married Martha Fenn, son Broocke is associate professor of engineering at Manhattan, Kansas, and daughter Anne is married to psychiatrist Dr. James Joliff in San Diego.

CHOIR TO TOUR CALIFORNIA AND MEXICO

The Princeton Seminary Choir finishes its thirty-second year of winter touring this month and prepares for a seven-week summer swing across the Midwest and Southwest to Southern California and Mexico. The choir will return to Princeton on July 25 after returning from Mexico via Texas, Arkansas, Tennessee, West Virginia and Virginia.

Director David Hugh Jones has left himself little time for relaxation between the completion of his thirty-second winter season and the beginning of the road trip. Between the final weekend engagement on May 15 and the first summer concert at Market Square Church in Harrisburg, Pa., on June 7 the choir must prepare the music for the June 5 Baccalaureate service, the June 7 Commencement, and the intervening Alumni Banquet. Final servicing and inspection of the choir's cars, the readying of choir robes, and the chore of packing will also fit into that period.

All during that period Professor Jones' office will be making final bookings for the 1966-67 Winter season, and initiating plans for the 1967 Summer tour.

The outward bound leg of the upcoming summer itinerary takes the Princeton singers through Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Missouri, Oklahoma, Texas and New Mexico to California. After fourteen days in California the choir heads for a July 6-13 stay in Mexico, singing in the cities of Chihuahua, Torreon, Aguascalientes, Mexico City, and Rio Verde.

On the way home the group will add the states of Arkansas, Tennessee, West Virginia and Virginia to the record of Summer, 1966.

ROCKER ADDED TO ALUMNI CHAIR LINE

Graduating Seniors at the Seminary this year were interested in the "alumni chair" offered for sale in the last issue of the NEWS, but a number of them expressed interest in a rocker to help with the responsibilities of parenthood.

Secretary of the Seminary Arthur M. Byers, made the necessary inquiries, and a Boston rocker bearing the seal of the Seminary is available at a price of $28.00 plus shipping charges. The chair is suitable for use in home or study, and as an accessory for 2:00 a.m., feedings. The style matches the armchairs described in the previous issue.

The thirteen-inch height is comfortable for both men and women. Purchasers are ordering the rocker for graduation gifts, anniversary remembrances, or as a presentation piece for such occasions as the honoring of a period of service by ministers and other church staff members.

The chairs will be shipped collect by the manufacturer, S. Bent and Brothers of Massachusetts. Express charges, which are collected on delivery, range from $4.00 in New England to $10.00 on the West Coast. Allow seven weeks for delivery.

Send checks payable to Princeton Theological Seminary with the order blank on this page, or provide the same information in a letter accompanying your check.

FACULTY WAITERS NIGHT...

... became a Princeton Seminary tradition in ten minutes last year when teachers and staff members donned a collection of costumes and turned out at the dining hall to wait tables for student diners.

Above, an unknown member of the Old Testament faculty leads the waiters' chorus in a rendition of "Happy Birthday" that brought a grimace to the countenance of Headwaiter James I. McCord.

Below, Treasurer William Lawder, center, and Cashier Clarence Reed, right, needed help from regular waiter Jack Holz of Columbus, Ohio. There was not a report on dish breakage.

On February 24-27 the fourth and final round of Lutheran-Reformed Conversations was held on the Seminary campus with President McCord as host.

The U. S. Naval Post-Graduate School, Monterey, Calif., heard an address by the President in late April, and the schedule for the remainder of the year includes Commencement addresses at Arkansas College on May 29 and Lancaster Theological Seminary on May 31.

GEORGE A. BARROIS delivered a paper on a manuscript of the Pseudo-Joachim materials at the Biennial Conference of Medieval Studies held this Spring on the campus of Western Michigan University, Kalamazoo. Professor Barrois discovered the manuscript while rummaging in the archives of the Badia di San Pietro in Perugia, Italy during his Sabbatical last year.

Named Associate Professor of Mediterranean Archaeology at Brandeis University is PHILIP C. HAMMOND, since 1960 a member of the Seminary's Biblical faculty. Hammond, who heads back to Jordan in June to lead a forty-member staff in the second season of his excavations at Hebron, saw his book, "The Excavation of the Main Theater, Petra" published in March, and also completed the volume "The Nabataeans" for the Ancient Peoples and Places series. It will be published next year. Taking part in this year's dig at Hebron will be staff members from the University of Southern California, Southwestern Baptist Seminary, Baldwin Wallace College, and Princeton Seminary.

Professor of Theology and Personality SEWARD HILTNER, who has served this academic year as a consultant to the program of training in marriage counseling of the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Pennsylvania, lectured during February to United Presbyterian Christian Educators meeting in Louisville, and in March spoke at Johns Hopkins Hospital under the auspices of the Maryland Heart Association. He also addressed a Johns Hopkins University audience under Y.M.C.A. sponsorship. Also in March, Hiltner conducted a ministers' conference at the Christian Sanitarium, Wyckoff, N. J. In April he held a similar conference at two Veterans Administration hospitals — Coatesville, Pa., and Omaha, Neb.

NORMAN V. HOPE has discussed the Confession of 1967 at churches in Rockaway, N. J., New York City, and Waynesboro, Pa., since the first of the year, in addition to his continuing responsibilities to the vacant pulpit at Levittown, Pa. He delivered four lectures on "Leaders of American Presbyterianism" at the First Memorial Church, Dover, N. J., and five talks on "St. Paul's Life and Work" at the Presbyterian Church of Morristown, N. J. In addition to Lenten appearances in churches in Philadelphia, Wilmington, Baltimore, Roselle, Woodbury, Lambertville, and Haddonfield, N. J., New Hope, Pa., and Richmond, Va., Professor Hope has conducted a chapel service for Lehigh University, Bethlehem, Pa.

"Readings in Christian Thought" by HUGH T. KERR appeared this Spring. Professor Kerr was the moderator of a panel at the Ninth Biennial Religious Conference of Princeton University's Student Christian Association, under the topic "Can Jesus be Communicated to Modern Man?" An illustrated lecture on "The Visual Arts and the Christian Faith" was given in the Llanerch Church of Havertown, Pa., on March 30.

Professor of Homiletics DONALD MACLEOD, who continues as interim preacher at First Church, West Chester, Pa., filled his Lenten schedule with twenty-seven engagements, including series at the First Church, Germantown, Pa., and the Livingston, N. J. First Presbyterian Church. March 23-25 found Macleod in New York for the meeting of the General Assembly's Committee on the Standardization of Presbytery Examinations, and April 18-20 was spent at Green Lake, Wis., where he lectured on preaching, and preached, for the annual American Lutheran Pastor's Conference. An April 30 alumni meeting at Elmira, N. Y., editing the March issue of the Seminary "Bulletin," and publishing a sermon in the February issue "Best Sermons" rounded out the Spring program.

Students and alumni of Central Baptist Seminary, Kansas City, heard BRUCE M. METZGER deliver a series of lectures in March. Professor Metzger saw several publication projects to completion this spring: the 600-page "Index to Periodical Literature on Christ and the Gospels," volume six of his series on "New Testament Tools and Studies;" the American Bible Society brought out "The Greek New Testament" in a special edition for Bible translators, revisers and students after ten years of labor by a committee of which Metzger was a member; and a symposium "The New English Bible Reviewed" carried a article written by the Princeton New Testament specialist.

JAMES HASTINGS NICHOLS has been active this spring in the area of inter-church conversations. In March he took part in a dialogue with a Roman Catholic theologian in Bryn Mawr, and had a similar session in Princeton in late April. He addressed a March 9 joint meeting in Washington, D. C., of United Presbyterian and Presbyterian, U. S., presbyteries serving that city, and on May 12-14 Nichols will chair a section of the official Roman Catholic-Reformed and Presbyterian conversations. His preaching during the period included a sermon at the First Church of Binghamton, N. Y., where his grandfather served as minister for twenty-five years. Nichols, who is secretary of the Presbyterian Historical Society, met March 17-18 with the librarians of Presbyterian seminaries to plan cooperative cataloguing and filming of American Presbyterianiana.

Dear Fellow-Ministers:

Let me add a postscript to my letter in the Spring number of the Alumni News which dealt with today's theological currents.

Although the "death of God" theology is the most widely-publicized movement today, it is far from being the most significant and it holds little promise. Serious theological work is going on in many areas, and I should like to enumerate three that do offer promise of fruitful results.

The first is interconfessional. This particular area is dramatic to the layman, less dramatic to the clergyman. It has become possible because of the developments in the ecumenical movement in this decade of the twentieth century. The coming of nearly all of Eastern Orthodoxy into the mainstream of ecumenical Christianity since 1961 has bridged a chasm that began to develop as early as the second century and was formalized in the middle of the eleventh century. Roman Catholicism has entered into the ecumenical dialogue massively since the pontificate of John XXIII. Orthodox, Roman Catholics, and Protestants are doing interconfessional theology in a new way. The Bible is being read together and heard together by traditions that hitherto have been separate. These several traditions are also being looked at together, not through separate blind bridles but in a common way that should enable us to discern more clearly the whole life and thought of the Church as they have been formed by the Holy Spirit.

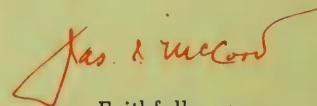

The second area in which significant theological work goes on is interfaith. This is a new departure for our generation. There has been practically no concern for interfaith research or dialogue during the past thirty years. Nearly every seminary in this country let the Chair of Comparative Religions or History of Religions lapse during the period between the 1930s and 1960s. Now, however, this area has become a new frontier. An example of the growing concern in this area is the Second Edward F. Gallahue Conference on World Religions which was held here on May 4-11. It dealt with the theme, "Religious Pluralism and World Community," and brought to the campus some of the most eminent leaders in Buddhist, Hindu, Muslim, Jewish, and Christian thought. The relevance of the theme may be seen each morning in headlines that tell of Catholics and Buddhists demonstrating in Vietnam, or of tensions between Muslims in Pakistan and Hindus in India. We in the West are challenged to rise above any provincialism and to look afresh at the challenge to theology which a shrinking world and a new and universal history present.

The third area in which significant work is being done is intercultural. Again, during the period out of which we have recently passed there has been very little interest in philosophy or science on the part of theologians. Graduates in Biblical and theological studies often have had very little knowledge of or concern for what has been going on in what C. P. Snow calls "the other culture." All of this now is being challenged, and a countermovement has begun. This may be seen in plans that are being made for advanced students next year. In cooperation with the University's Department of the History of Science a year-long course is being projected that will introduce theological students in depth to this dimension of culture. Similar planning in the area of philosophy is going on.

I have tried only to sketch directions. Although theology may appear to be sheer chaos, valuable and creative work is being done in the presence of an agonizing concern for the absence of God and for the loss of meaning. But the theologian, challenged by this whole movement, has begun to reach across confessional lines, to engage other faiths, to build bridges to new cultures, and to be in vigorous conversation with modern man on the frontiers of his endeavors and concerns.

Only thus can theology perform its "servant-role" and help change the Church Hesitant into the Church Militant, a community of faith that presses not the imperious claim of a culture on the world but the imperial claim of the Person who reigns as Lord of life and of death.

Faithfully yours,
James I. McCord

NEW STATED CLERK TO BE INSTALLED IN MILLER CHAPEL

Dr. William Phelps Thompson, elected May 25 by the 178th General Assembly in Boston to succeed Eugene Carson Blake, '32, as Stated Clerk of the United Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., will be installed in his new office in Miller Chapel on October 17 at 2:30 p.m.

Thompson, who was named an honorary alumnus of Princeton Seminary following his election as Moderator of the 177th General Assembly in 1965, will be honored by a luncheon prior to his installation, and a reception in the Campus Center after the service.

The schedule calls for the service of installation to be attended by a large group of invited representatives from other communions, as well as people coming by chartered bus from United Presbyterian offices in Philadelphia and New York.

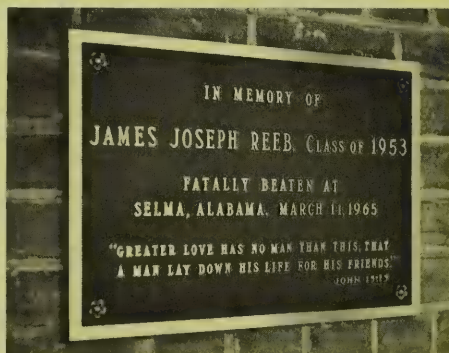

WILLIAM P. THOMPSON, who made his first visit to a seminary campus on November 10, 1965, when he spoke in Miller Chapel as Moderator of the 177th General Assembly, will return to Princeton Seminary October 17 to be installed as the Stated Clerk of the General Assembly. Thompson, who was elected to the clerkship by the 178th Assembly in Boston, was photographed on his first visit with (left to right) President James I. McCord, Professor Edward A. Dowey, and Vice President Robert M. Skinner.

STATEMENT OF DEDICATION BY LEFFERTS A. LOETSCHER, '28

James Joseph Reeb was born in Wichita, Kansas, on January 1, 1927. After completing high school and serving for a year in the United States Army (1945-1946), he graduated from St. Olaf College (1950). He received the B.D. degree from Princeton Theological Seminary in 1953. He was, successively, chaplain of the Philadelphia West Branch YMCA (1957-1959), Assistant Minister (1957-1959), then Associate Minister (1963-1964) of All Souls' Unitarian Church, Washington, D. C. He then became Community Relations Director of the Boston Metropolitan Housing Program of the American Friends Service Committee (1964-1965).

James Reeb, from early boyhood, devoted himself increasingly to understanding and serving the friendless and the underprivileged. Victims of poverty, race prejudice, and inner-city decay were particular objects of his longstanding concern. When he saw on television the brutal beating of civil rights marchers in Selma, Alabama, he was deeply stirred. The next day he responded to the call to join them in their march for human dignity and the rights of citizenship.

By his tragic death in Selma on March 11, 1965, this quiet, conscientious man became a symbol, seen around the world, of the struggle for racial justice in the United States. His sacrifice strengthened the resolution of the nation that the evil which he fought must be ended. May the death of James Reeb and this plaque which commemorates it, always remind Princeton Seminary that the fight against evil in ourselves and in our society involves the dedication of everything we are and everything we have. "Greater love has no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

BENNETT WARNS 1966 GRADUATES AGAINST EMPHASIS ON THE SECULAR

The independence of the Church as it confronts the world must be preserved in an age when one-sided emphasis upon secularization and involvement have come to characterize theology, Union Seminary President John Bennett told members of the Class of 1966 at Commencement exercises June 7.

"We must make a special point of maintaining a certain distance as well as involvement," said Bennett, "with the city, culture, the world, the state. These do not need the Church as an echo. . . . They need the Church that brings independent judgment and inspiration to the secular community."

Bennett delivered his Commencement address, the final event of the three-day graduation schedule, to an audience of 168 degree candidates as well as the Seminary faculty and guests in the Chapel of Princeton University.

Seventy-two students were awarded the Bachelor of Divinity degree by President James I. McCord in the Commencement exercises, and nineteen students received the degree of Master of Religious Education. Th.M. degrees went to sixty-eight graduates, and the degree of Doctor of Theology was granted to nine candidates.

Bennett, who assumed the Union presidency in 1963 after a distinguished teaching career, concentrated on the graduates who would be entering the service of local churches.

"There is much to be said for the celebration of the secular: . . . this emphasis upon (allowing) the creative human enterprises to be themselves, free from ecclesiastical or traditional religious controls . . . I see, however, a tendency to celebrate the secular in such a way as to allow too much of what goes on under this name to remain without Christian criticism."

Bennett, who criticized Professor Harvey Cox for his identification of the human response to the "Secular City" with the human response to the humanity of Jesus Christ, warned that "if we become oriented to the secular as portrayed by many theologians we are not likely to be prepared to deal with the principalities and powers of the actual world that the Church confronts."

"The Church is on its own, in a secularized society," said President Bennett. "It must trust to the power of the Gospel to draw, and to the Spirit to move, the hearts of men."

"May each church which you serve . . . bless that world with a Gospel which cannot be learned from it. May each church to which you go become more truly a church because it participates in the universal Church of Christ that stands over against the nations while it seeks to serve them."

James W. Clarke, from 1955 to 1959

Professor of Homiletics at Princeton Seminary, told 1966 graduates in his June 5 Baccalaureate sermon that the three great rewards and incentives of his ministry were the discovery of a satisfying life, a totally-challenging task, and a positive attitude that leads to the fulfillment of expectations.

Clarke said that he had made certain assumptions in his pastoral service that he had been able to depend upon. They included the assumptions that office-holders in the church were serious in their vows, that people coming into membership were sincere in their pledges and intentions, and that the pulpit was free to be thoughtful, wise, faithful and truthful.

These expectations were realized, Clarke said, "in what is in every congregation an ecclesia, the core group of dedicated, devoted people who rise to every honorable challenge that is addressed to them. It was partially realized in that band of membership which surround the ecclesia . . . that band of decent, respectable, orthodox Christians."

"You are going out into a strange world, and you are going into a strange community — I don't care what community you are going to — a world and a community that are both heart-warming and heart-chilling," said Clarke. "History of a kind that we have never known before is advancing down upon us."

McCORD SPEECH, REEB MEMORIAL HIGHLIGHT ANNUAL ALUMNI DAY

Two hundred alumni, plus the families and friends of graduating students and other guests, took part in the June 6 Alumni Day program that included the dedication of a plaque honoring James J. Reeb, '53, who was killed during the Selma, Ala., civil rights conflict of March, 1965.

Alumni Day participants dropped in on class and club reunions, attended discussions of the book, Christianity and World History by Arend T. van Leeuwen, attended a reception at Springdale, and wound up the day at the annual Alumni Banquet where they confirmed new officers and heard an address by President James I. McCord.

"This institution has a crucially important role to play in the life of the Church in the last third of this century," President McCord told the former students. "We are a seminary within the life of the Church, solidly with the Church. We are also related to the intellectual community" by virtue of our ties with Princeton University and the complex of research and study centers surrounding the campus. "Of all the Church-related institutions, this one is pre-eminent. This underscores the responsibility for setting the pattern of Church-related theological education here and abroad."

President McCord outlined several threats facing Princeton Seminary in coming years, including the economic problems of being an institution that must compete for resources without being able to share in government support and the threat of various institutes that treat single problems without accomplishing the basic task of establishing a full theological foundation.

"The threat I fear most," he said, "comes today from within the Church. It is said that we suffer from a failure of nerve in mission. The reason is a loss of certainty concerning the meaning of the Gospel. I am convinced that we must repossess the full meaning of the word 'professional' — a man devoted, competent, and believing in the future of the Church. This school still has its greatest tasks before it."

In a memorial service attended by the family and friends of James Reeb, President Emeritus John A. Mackay called the slain alumnus "a representative American of the sixties" because of his dedication to the cause of man, his purpose-filled life, his concern for people, and his commitment to reconciliation.

In addition to President McCord and Professor Lefferts A. Loetscher, those taking part in the service of dedication included Alumni President Frank Watson, '57, minister of the Presbyterian Church of White Plains, N. Y.; Class of 1953 President Richard J. Oman, minister of the First Presbyterian Church of York, Pa.; and Trustee Secretary Frederick E. Christian, '34, minister of the Westfield, N. J., Presbyterian Church.

FALL ALUMNI CONFERENCE SCHEDULED FOR SEPTEMBER 15-16

Dr. and Mrs. N. Gordon Cosby, founders of the Church of the Saviour in Washington, D. C., often regarded as one of the most influential small churches in the nation, will be the speakers for the 1966 Fall Alumni Conference.

The theme of the Conference, which opens with registration on September 15 at 2:00 p.m., is "Inward Journey, Outward Journey." Dr. Cosby will deliver three lectures on the theme, and a discussion period led by Dr. and Mrs. Cosby will follow each lecture.

Registration for the Conference begins at 2:00 p.m., on Thursday, September 15, with the opening service of worship scheduled for 2:45 p.m., in Miller Chapel. President James I. McCord will conduct the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper at 11:00 a.m., Friday, September 16, and the Conference will close with the noon meal on that day.

The ministry of the Church of the Saviour is the subject of a book by Elizabeth O'Conner, Call to Commitment. Two reviews of the volume are printed on these pages, and alumni planning to take part in the Conference are encouraged to read the volume as preparation for the discussions.

Cosby, a native of Lynchburg, Va., entered the Army chaplaincy after receiving his B.D. degree from Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in 1942. Leaving the service in 1946, he began work toward the establishment of a church that "would know that its mission was to take a world for Christ." The Church of the Saviour is the result, a congregation whose members have accepted the obligation of total commitment to the will of God in every area of life.

Mrs. Cosby, who with her husband helped found the Church of the Saviour, is a graduate of Randolph Macon College and has studied at the American University in Washington. Like her husband she is a frequent lecturer and retreat leader.

BLAKE PRESENTED WITH DISTINGUISHED ALUMNUS AWARD

Eugene Carson Blake, '32, who left the office of Stated Clerk of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church at the end of June in order to prepare for his new responsibilities as General Secretary of the World Council of Churches, was named a Distinguished Alumnus of the Seminary at special ceremonies held May 21 at the Alumni Banquet during the 178th General Assembly.

A sterling silver bowl with an enameled interior, inscribed "Eugene Carson Blake, Princeton Theological Seminary, Distinguished Alumnus 1966," was presented to Blake by a fellow Trustee, William H. Scheide of Princeton.

Scheide, in making the presentation, praised Blake for being "a dissonant note" in the United Presbyterian Church, a voice of leadership that contributed to harmony by being clearly distinguishable.

Blake's pastoral relationships to other Trustees and to his colleagues were also praised by Scheide in making the Distinguished Alumnus presentation.

THREE SEMINARY STUDENTS AWARDED FELLOWSHIPS

Three Princeton Seminary students have been awarded study grants by major foundations for projects to be undertaken next year.

David W. Wills, who received his B.D. degree on June 7, was named a Kent Fellow, and will begin doctoral study this fall at Harvard University. A 1962 graduate of Yale College, Wills was active during his Princeton Seminary residence in student government and civil rights organizations, and undertook field education in both inner city and campus situations.

Jackson Walter Carroll, a Th.D. candidate who was formerly the Methodist chaplain at Duke University, was awarded a Danforth Campus Ministry grant for the coming academic year, and will continue his studies at Princeton Seminary. Carroll is a graduate of Wofford College and Duke University Divinity School.

David S. Wiley, also a doctoral candidate, will go to Zambia, Africa, next year for research in connection with his doctoral dissertation under the terms of a grant awarded by the Foreign Area Fellowship Program of the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Science Research Council. Wiley, a graduate of Yale Divinity School and Wabash College, has been active in Koinonia, the graduate students' organization, and in campus civil rights activities.

CALL TO COMMITMENT

Commitment and Continuity by James G. Emerson, '49

Call to Commitment is not the first book to suggest new structures for parish life, but it will take its place with the best. Especially to those of us who have heard about the Church of the Saviour and the Potter's House, but have not seen it, this book brings a clear and first hand picture.

To me, the most important contribution of the book is the way it describes the ministry of a congregation as opposed to the ministry of a preacher. It is now a truism that the priesthood of all believers has never been fulfilled in our reformation churches. This parish has shown ways in which the priesthood of all believers can be made real.

From the perspective of pastoral theology, the emphasis on mission is essential not only because we are commanded but because mission is the means by which faith also becomes real to us. Mission work can become a means for building our ego, but that must not blind us to the dynamic effect of mission in the life of the missionary. Call to Commitment provides an excellent study of that dynamic.

I do not believe it is parochialism that leads me to raise a question about this particular parish. "How does it meet the legitimate concern of our Roman Catholic and Orthodox friends about the continuity of the Church?" Dr. Trueblood praises this parish for its resistance to denominationalism (see his introduction). Yet even that resistance can be neurotic or demonic. For me, the Church ceases to be the Church of Christ when it ceases to have dialogue with its historic past just as much as when it loses dialogue with the historic present. Freedom from bondage to structure or the historically visible church is not the same as ignoring relationship to that past. We have not yet resolved this issue.

A Psychological Sameness? by Conrad H. Massa, '54

Elizabeth O'Connor's recital of the experience which is the story of the Church of the Saviour is an opening to view of the intimacy of a vision seen by a few at first, then shared and spread.

The reader cannot help being touched by the obvious openness and sincerity of the author. The Christian cannot help being challenged by the depth of commitment of this community which has succeeded where so many of us have failed — in managing to find ways to enunciate the Gospel through the deed which demonstrates it.

Yet this book ought to stimulate considerable discussion. We may challenge the basic premise that "surely entrance into the Christian Church presupposes total commitment to Christ as the Lord of the Church" (p. 25), and the line which is, thus, drawn between "members" and "non-members" in a way for which it is difficult to find New Testament support.

Secondly, the quantitative measure of discipline is open to challenge. Why should prayer life be measured in minutes? (p. 36) Or measured at all? The pledge of discipline itself (p. 34) is more refreshingly open.

Thirdly, the reader is sometimes haunted by the feeling that a "psychological sameness" is being required of all, or is troubled by the fact that Christian love is seemingly defined as "relationship in depth" (p. 124). Is it such completely? Partially? Or are theological and psychological verities being confused altogether? Can intensity of feeling and relationship be so continuous? Would psychological health bear it?

Finally, with deep respect for a fellowship which sees the Church as experimenting, but never a mere experiment, and for whom "tasks become gifts," one still has to ask, "Where is the sense of vocation within the structure of the world? Can these Christians, for all their devotion, minister only through those groups which they create, own, and control?"

During the summer months, the itinerary for the 1966-67 meetings will be planned. Chapters which have not met recently should send requests with suggested dates to the Rev. Arthur M. Byers, Jr.

Fourteen Alumni Chapters in the U. S. have organized and elected officers. During the coming year Mr. Byers will welcome communications from the remaining chapters as they prepare for meetings. New chapters can be formed wherever a nucleus of Princeton Seminary alumni can be gathered together.

DIRECTED READING PROGRAMS ESTABLISHED BY CENTER OF CONTINUING EDUCATION

Ten programs of directed study for ministers in the parish and other forms of ministry have been established by the Seminary's Center of Continuing Education.

The programs, each with an individual reading guide, are designed to help ministers continue systematic study while engaged in normal pastoral duties. The reading guides have been prepared by members of the Seminary faculty and other scholars, and the books recommended in each field are available through the Center of Continuing Education.

"There are no papers or reports required," said Director of Continuing Education Jack Cooper. "These study programs are not intended to earn credit toward an academic degree. Our goal is establishment of a plan that will help the pastor keep up to date in the various fields of study that relate to his responsibilities."

Here is how the Directed Reading Program works. Each guide recommends ten to fifteen books that give a comprehensive treatment of the subject under study. There are five copies of each recommended book available at the Center of Continuing Education. Each student enrolled in the program will be sent a single book at a time, and he is expected to read the book within a two or three week period. As soon as the book is returned to the Center, the next volume in the sequence will be mailed to the student.

Since certain courses may draw more attention than others, alumni requesting the service should indicate a first, second, and third choice of courses when applying. Alumni may apply to take part in the program by writing a note on the letterhead of the church or other institution or agency they serve.

First priority will be given to those who have attended sessions at the Center of Continuing Education and to overseas alumni of the Seminary. A waiting list for the service will be maintained at the Center.

New topics will be added to the list of Directed Reading Study Guides as the program is expanded. At the present time the following guides are available:

1. "Biblical Theology" by J. Christaan Beker
2. "Christian Education for the Parish" by D. Campbell Wyckoff
3. "Church Administration" by Arthur M. Adams
4. "Church Unity" by Paul A. Crowe, Jr.
5. "The New Hermeneutics" by Daniel L. Migliore
6. "World Religions" by Edward J. Jurji
7. "Pastoral Care and Counseling" by Seward Hiltner
8. "Evangelism" by Elmer G. Homrighausen
9. "The Ministry of Preaching" by Donald Macleod
10. "Church at Worship" by Donald Macleod

DR. HARVEY G. COX spoke on "The Church's Relation to the Power Struggle in the City" at a May 6 Consultation on Theology and the Urban Church held at the Seminary. On stage with Dr. Cox, who wrote the widely-discussed book The Secular City, are Professor of Theology George Hendry, left, and Christopher M. Meadows, Assistant to the Dean of Field Education and Director of the Princeton Seminary Urban Project. Along with Cox and Hendry, participants also listened to addresses by Dr. Lefferts Loetscher and Dr. Robert W. Duke, Professor of Preaching at Lancaster Seminary.

The Second Edward F. Gallahue Conference on World Religions brought together some sixty leading scholars from the fields of comparative religion and philosophy May 4-11 for a discussion of "Religious Pluralism and World Community." Papers from the Conference will be published in the near future, and plans for the next session in the Gallahue series are underway.

Edward F. Gallahue, Indianapolis businessman whose interest in interfaith and intercultural relations led him to sponsor the series of world religions conferences at Princeton Seminary, chats with President McCord and Conference participants. Looking on are James Kritzeck (right), Conference delegate from the Vatican's Secretariat for Non-Christian Religions; and Arend T. van Leeuwen (between Gallahue and McCord) head of the Kerken Wereld Institute in The Netherlands.

Professor Philip H. Ashby of Princeton University chairs a discussion session at the Gallahue Conference, held at the Princeton Inn. Conference Director Edward J. Jurji, Princeton Seminary Professor of the History of Religions, is seated closest to the camera at the head table.

"The Historic Chinese Contribution to Religious Pluralism and World Community" was the topic of Dartmouth College Professor Wing-tsit Chan, shown discussing his topic at the Conference. Next to him is Professor Robert C. Zaehner of Oxford University, and on the right is Professor Robley E. Whitson of Fordham University.

FELMETH, KILGORE, SPEAKMAN NAMED TO BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Three new members of the Princeton Seminary Board of Trustees were approved by the 178th General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church at its May meeting in Boston. They are Frederick B. Speakman, minister of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Dayton, Ohio; Bernard Kilgore, Chairman of the Board of Dow Jones and Company; and William H. Felmeth, minister of the Basking Ridge Presbyterian Church, Basking Ridge, N. J.

Felmeth, who was named to a three-year term as Alumni Trustee, is a member of the Princeton Seminary Class of 1942. A cum laude graduate of Harvard, he served three years as a field artillery officer in World War II, and leaving the service went to Cranbury, N. J., as minister of the First Presbyterian Church. Felmeth went to the Basking Ridge Presbyterian Church in 1951, and continues to serve that congregation. He has been moderator of both Monmouth and Elizabeth Presbyteries, chaired the Committee on National Missions and the Committee on Administration of the Synod of New Jersey, and was a member of the General Assembly Nominating Committee. The Freedoms Foundation has three times honored Felmeth with awards for sermons preached during different years, and in 1963 he was given a Doctor of Divinity degree by Bloomfield College, of which he is a Trustee.

Bernard Kilgore, a native of Indiana and Phi Beta Kappa graduate of De Pauw University in 1929, joined the staff of Dow Jones in September, 1929, at the peak of the market boom of the Twenties. He moved to the firm's copy desk within two weeks, and for the next fourteen years was engaged in news work. In 1941 he was appointed managing editor of the Wall Street Journal, and subsequently became Vice President and General Manager, then President of Dow Jones in 1945. In 1966 Kilgore resigned as President and Chief Executive Office of Dow Jones to become Chairman of the Board of Directors. A former member of the Economic Advisory Council of Princeton University, and currently serving on the Advisory Council of the Astro-Physics Department of the University, Kilgore is a Trustee of De Pauw University (President of the Board in 1965) and has received numerous awards for distinguished service to journalism. He makes his home in Princeton and is an Elder of the First Presbyterian Church.

Frederick B. Speakman, Class of 1945 at Princeton Seminary, has been the minister of the Westminster Church, Dayton, since 1963. He previously served from 1944 to 1949 as minister of the Central Brick Presbyterian Church of East Orange, N. J., and then for fourteen years in the pastorate of Third Church, Pittsburgh. While in Pittsburgh he served as Acting Dean of the Chapel at Chatham College, guest Professor of Homiletics at Pittsburgh Theological Seminary, Vice President of Pittsburgh Seminary's Board of Trustees, and Chairman of the College Division of the Committee of Christian Education of the Synod of Pennsylvania. A native of Chandler, Okla., Speakman is the author of The Salty Tang, Love Is Something You Do, and God and Jack Wilson. In 1960-61 he was featured in the television series "Man and His Problems" produced by the Westinghouse Broadcasting Company. After earning both the B.A. and M.A. degrees from the University of Oklahoma, Speakman came to Princeton Seminary in 1941 for his B.D. degree. He is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, and held the Newberry and Theology Fellowships at the Seminary as well as winning the Hugh Davies Prize in Preaching. He took a second M.A. degree at Harvard, has been honored with the Doctor of Divinity degree by Washington and Jefferson College, and was named by the General Assembly as the National Presbyterian Church preacher for the year 1964.

TOP RIGHT: Choir members old and new joined together at the Alumni Day dinner to lead fellow students at the reunion in the traditional "When I Survey the Wondrous Cross."

LOWER RIGHT: Trustee Bryant M. Kirkland, '38, pulled rank to bestow a congratulatory kiss on one of the M.R.E. graduates of 1966, a former parishioner. Dean Arthur M. Adams, '34, left, claims it also helps if the graduate is the Trustee's daughter, as is Elinor Ann Kirkland.

ALUMNI CHAIRS STILL ATTRACTING PURCHASERS

A total of sixty alumni chairs have been sold to forty-six purchasers since the chairs were first announced in the Alumni News, Secretary of the Seminary Arthur M. Byers has announced.

Byers, who recently visited the factory producing the chairs, reports that they have been used for graduation and birthday presents, presentation pieces on special occasions, donated to the Center for Continuing Education, and purchased in the form of rocking chairs by student wives anticipating their first offspring.

The current heavy demand for yellow birch has caused a price increase, effective July 1, 1966, as follows: Black arm chair with cherry arms, $36.00; black arm chair with black arms, $35.25; side chair without arms, $22.00; Boston rocker, $29.50. The chairs are carefully packed for safe shipment. An order card has been bound into this issue of the Alumni News for your convenience.

ALUMNI GIVING SETS NEW RECORDS

More than 1,000 Princeton Seminary alumni sent cash or pledges for the 1966 Alumni Roll Call, Vice President Robert M. Skinner reported at the annual Alumni Banquet during Commencement, for a total of more than $30,000.

The figure is more than twice the $12,429.37 contributed by 886 former students a year ago. Among the 1966 gifts was a contribution of $10,500 in stock for the establishment of a scholarship fund, but even with this large gift left out of the comparisons, the 1966 Roll Call achieved the following:

$20,625.25 in cash and pledges — up $8,195.88

1,032 alumni participating — up 146

$19.31 average gift — up $7.45

18.6% of alumni participating — up approximately 3%

Class of 1916 Memorial Fund established
(for scholarships).

Dr. Skinner also pointed out that slightly less than half of this year's donors had contributed to the 1965 Roll Call. "This means," he said, "that some 435 persons who gave to the 1965 campaign have not yet responded to the 1966 Roll Call."

The statistics show the Class of 1965 leading in number of gifts with forty-nine. Next comes '52 with thirty-two and '61 with thirty. The gifts by classes (excluding pledges) are as follows:

FORMER FACULTY AND TRUSTEE DEATHS REPORTED

Four men who greatly influenced Princeton Theological Seminary died during recent months. Three of them were formerly active members of the teaching staff, or administration, and one a trustee.

Ralph Cooper Hutchison, who from 1925 to 1931 served as Dean of the Alborz College in Teheran, Iran, from 1931 to 1945 was President of Washington and Jefferson College and who was president of Lafayette College from 1945 until 1957, died March 15, 1966 at Bryn Mawr, Pa. From 1938 until his death Mr. Hutchison was a member of the Seminary's Board of Trustees. A native of Colorado, Hutchison earned the degrees of Bachelor of Arts (Lafayette, 1918), Master of Arts (Harvard, 1919), Doctor of Philosophy (Pennsylvania, 1925), and was a member of the Class of 1922 at Princeton Theological Seminary. In 1957 he became Chancellor of the Abadan Institute of Technology, and in 1960 he was named Director of Studies in Higher Education, a Philadelphia-based foundation. He is survived by his widow, two children and nine grandchildren.

Former members of the faculty and staff whose deaths were reported recently are: Emil Brunner, who taught at Princeton Seminary in 1938-1939; Andrew W. Blackwood, Professor of Homiletics from 1929 to 1950; and Henry Seymour Brown, a former Seminary Trustee who became Vice President in 1937 and served until his retirement in 1946.

Emil Brunner, one of the most distinguished theologians of his generation, died April 7 in Switzerland near the campus of the University of Zurich where he began his teaching career in 1924. A parish minister in the Canton of Glarus before going to the classroom, Brunner was one of the key figures in bridging the gap between European and American theology. Princeton University, during its 1946 Bicentennial Celebration, awarded him a Doctor of Divinity degree with a citation that praised his leadership in the modern theological revival and in preparing European Protestantism for resistance to tyranny. His books, including Justice and the Social Order, The Mediator, Christianity and Civilization, and The Christian Doctrine of God, remain staples in the reading diet of theological students. After his retirement at Zurich Brunner spent several years on the faculty of the Japanese International Christian University. He continued to preach and write after his return to Switzerland.

Andrew W. Blackwood came to the Princeton Seminary faculty in 1930, following five years as a teacher at Louisville Seminary. He had served earlier pastorates at Columbus, Ohio, Columbia, S. C., and Pittsburgh, Pa. In the South Carolina congregation he served as a minister of the Presbyterian Church, U. S., and in Pittsburgh he ministered to a congregation of the United Presbyterian Church of North America. Blackwood studied at Princeton Seminary in 1905-1906, and completed his theological training at Pittsburgh-Xenia Seminary. He held A.B. degrees from Franklin College and Harvard University. Dr. Blackwood was the author of a large number of pamphlets and articles, as well as some seventeen books in the area of preaching and pastoral work. At his death on March 28, 1966, he was survived by Mrs. Blackwood and four sons, two of them in the ministry.

Vice President Henry Seymour Brown, who died May 16, 1966, was a graduate of the Seminary in the Class of 1900. His earlier pastorates included South Park Church in Newark, Tabernacle Church in Philadelphia, in both of which he served as an assistant; First Church, East Aurora, N. Y., First Church, East Cleveland, Ohio, and Lakeview Church of Chicago. In 1918 Dr. Brown became Superintendent of the Board of Church Extension of the Presbytery of Chicago, where he served until coming to Princeton as Vice President in 1937. After his retirement as Vice President Emeritus in 1946 Dr. Brown became the minister of the Harundale Church, Glen Burnie, Md., until 1949. He continued to preach until his death.

FACULTY NOTES

PRESIDENT JAMES I. McCORD was named Chairman of the National Faith and Order Colloquium at its first meeting the week of June 12 in Chicago. Dr. McCord, who gave commencement addresses at Arkansas College and Lancaster Theological Seminary this year, received the degree of Doctor of Laws, Honoris Causa, from Bloomfield College on June 4.

DEAN ARTHUR M. ADAMS spoke on "New Developments in Practical Theology" March 5, for the International Consultation on Theological Education sponsored by the National Council of Churches. During recent months he has conducted a seminar on church administration at the Center of Continuing Education, spoken before two synods and five presbyteries, and preached or addressed groups in Brown Memorial Church, Baltimore; First Church, Germantown; Chestnut Hill Church in Philadelphia; Market Square Church in Harrisburg; and the First Churches of Ridgewood and Morristown, N. J. Adams is currently chairman of Continuing Education for the United Presbyterian Council on Theological Education, and serves on the National Council's Committee on Continuing Education. He met June 19-20 with the Task Force of Leisure held on campus under National Council auspices, conducted a workshop during the July 5-15 Institute of Theology, and in late July will teach a course on church administration at the Pacific School of Religion.

The York Ministerium of the United Church of Christ heard SAMUEL W. BLIZZARD speak on the minister's participation in public affairs at their March 7 meeting. On May 22-23 Professor Blizzard took part in a consultation on Christian beliefs and anti-Semitism sponsored by B'nai B'rith's Anti-Defamation League.

Assistant Professor of Christian Education FREDA GARDNER spoke during recent months to youth leaders at the Hamilton Square Baptist Church, Christian education dinners at Prospect Church, Maplewood, N. J., and First Church, Caldwell, N. J., and in mid-May directed a retreat for senior high youth from the Crescent Avenue Church of Plainfield. Miss Gardner helped conduct a faculty coaching conference in preparation for the New Jersey Synod Leadership School, and met with youth advisors during two Evangelistic Fellowship Conferences held on campus in April.

Professor and Mrs. SEWARD HILTNER celebrated their thirtieth wedding anniversary May 29, and a few days later entertained Union Seminary President Emeritus Henry P. Van Dusen. Dr. Van Dusen married the Hiltners in Stockbridge, Mass., in 1936. The same month saw the translation of Hiltner's book PASTORAL COUNSELING into a new language — Finnish. During June Professor Hiltner has attended the biennial meeting of the Association of Seminary Professors in the Practical Fields. The group, which met this year at Wesley Seminary in Washington, was founded in 1950 by Hiltner. Lectures by Hiltner in recent months have been delivered at the annual meeting of the American Psychiatric Association in Atlantic City, a meeting of doctors and clergy at Overlook Hospital in Summit, N. J., and to the June meeting of the American Association of Theological Schools. Hiltner's report on nomenclature for the first professional theological degree, delivered to the AATS, concluded six years' service as chairman of the group's Commission on Research and Counsel. Professor Hiltner is serving as chairman of the Middle Atlantic region in preparing for a September, 1967, conference on health and salvation which is being sponsored by the World Council of Churches.

Professor E. G. HOMRIGHAUSEN during recent months has preached or lectured on the campuses of the following schools: Princeton University, Hood College, Lake Forest College, Macalester College, Heidelberg College, Carroll College, Westminster College, Philips University, Goshen College and Biblical Seminary, and the Moravian Lay School of Theology. Other activities on his calendar included an International Conference on Vatican II held at Notre Dame, and the annual meeting of the Friends of the World Council of Churches at Buck Hill Falls, Pa. Homrighausen also delivered three lectures to the Kansas Disciples of Christ Assembly and three addresses to the National Ministers Conference of the Christian Reformed Church, held in Grand Rapids.

RELIGIOUS PATHOLOGY AND CHRISTIAN FAITH was published this month by Professor JAMES E. LODER.

Homiletics Professor DONALD MACLEOD, who continues to serve as interim preacher at the First Presbyterian Church of West Chester, Pa., lectured on Presbyterian worship May 22 at North Haledon Church, N. J., and on June 25 met with the committee planning a new sanctuary for the Presbyterian Church of Downingtown, Pa. Macleod conducted a homiletics workshop for the Institute of Theology in early July, and during recent weeks preached in Fourth Presbyterian Church, Chicago; Third Presbyterian Church, Rochester; and Bloor Street Church, Toronto.

A German translation of Professor BRUCE M. METZGER'S book, THE TEXT OF THE NEW TESTAMENT, ITS TRANSMISSION, CORRUPTION AND RESTORATION, appeared recently. Dr. Metzger also published a study, "The Christianization of Nubia and the Old Nubian Version of the New Testament" in the Berlin Academy's series TEXTE UND UNTERSUCHUNGEN, and an article in the annual volume of BIBLIOGRAPHICA PATRISTICA, also published in Germany. The annual Conference of the American Theological Library Association heard Metzger lecture on "Bibliographical Aids for the Study of the Manuscripts of the New Testament." As chairman of the Committee on Translations of the American Bible Society, Professor Metzger took part in the service of dedication of the new Bible House in New York City, and at the Society's sesquicentennial celebration presented a copy of the newly-published GREEK NEW TESTAMENT, which he helped edit, to Archbishop Iakovos of the World Council of Churches.

Professor PAUL SCHERER was in Seattle, Washington, April 25-May 2, to address a convocation of Methodists on the subject of evangelism. On May 29 Professor Scherer was in Webster Groves, Mo., to speak at the 100th anniversary of four Webster Grove Churches — congregations affiliated with the United Church of Christ, the Protestant Episcopal Church, the United Presbyterian Church, and the Baptist Church.

In addition to speaking engagements at Muskingum, Alma and Cornell Colleges and New Brunswick and Union Theological Seminaries, Professor M. RICHARD SHAULL this spring visited the Dominican Republic as a member of a team sent to the revolt-torn nation by the Committee on Free Elections in the Dominican Republic. In late June Shaull lectured on "Theology and Social Change" at the Quadrennial Convocation of the Association of Protestant Colleges, held in Richmond, Ind. He was the commencement speaker at San Francisco Theological Seminary May 28, and in July will be a delegate and speaker at the World Conference on Church and Society, held in Geneva by the World Council of Churches.

CHARLES C. WEST will also be in Geneva July 12-26 for the World Conference on Church and Society. In May he served as President McCord's alternate to the Dallas meeting of the Consultation on Church Union, and in August he will take part in the meeting of the World Council's Committee on Missionary Studies.
